Truce Effort Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fourteen senators, including some of President Nixon's staunchest backers, have urged the President to reactivate the stymied Paris peace talks by pressing for a Vietnam cease-fire.

The senators suggested in a letter Tuesday the United States should lay such a new initiative on the bargaining table. The cease-fire should be coupled with aid to North and South Vietnam and propose free elections in which the Viet Cong could participate, they said.

"We believe that there is much to gain by making this proposal the next order of business at the Paris talks, and we hope you will give it your most serious consideration," the senators wrote Nixon.

U.S. negotiators have made previous cease-fire offers which have drawn no positive response from North Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

The proposal suggested by the senators would have free elections in South Vietnam supervised by an international commission, call for freedom for war prisoners and provide economic reconstruction aid to North and South Vietnam.

The letter was made public shortly after the Senate, by a 55-39 vote, rejected a proposal requiring Nixon to withdraw all U.S. troops from Vietnam by the end of 1971.

Among the signers of the letter to Nixon were Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, who supported the "endthe-war amendment," and Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., who opposed the amendment.

Scott and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a leader in organizing support for the letter, told a news conference they consider this "a good time to stir something up" at the peace talks.

They said the letter had not been solicited by the Nixon administration.

At the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said, "We welcome the objectives contained in the letter."

Noting previous talk of a cease-fire in Vietnam, Ziegler said, the problem in Paris is that "the other side continues to show an unwillingness to engage in meaningful discussion ...."

Signing the letter to Nixon were Mansfield, Jackson, Scott, Goldwater, and Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y.; Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash.; Robert J. Dole, R-Kan.; Alan Bible, D-Nev.; Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H.; Winston Prouty, R-Vt.; Birch Bayh, D-Ind.; Charles Percy, R-Ill.; Milton R. Young, R.N.D.; and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

Census Shows Heavy Shift To Suburbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The just-completed census sketch of America has a familiar look. It depicts a nation of 200-plus million persons in search of warm weather or suburbia.

The nation's full-scale portrait won't be unveiled until the final, official tally is completed and sent to President Nixon by Dec. 1. But the preliminary figures announced Tuesday by Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans provides a good preview.

It is surprisingly unsurprising, backing up what the Census Bureau had projected all along on the basis of the old 1960 figures and subsequent spot samplings.

It shows:

—A nationwide total of 200,263,721 persons counted so far, and likely to go to between 204 and 205 million by the time such still-uncounted categories as overseas servicemen are added. The bureau had projected 204.8 million for last April 1, the date the census was taken.

—California grew the most, by nearly 4 million to 19.7 million, to replace New York as the most populous state.

—Americans moved toward warm weather. Florida and Texas joined California as states with more than a million population growth, along with the colder but already teeming states of New York and New Jersey. The largest percentage increases were scored by Nevada, with 68.9 per cent, Florida with 34.7 and Arizona with 34.6.

—Suburbanites outnumber residents of inner cities for the first time. Thirteen of the 25 largest cities in the '70 tally had lost population, including Chicago, Detroit and Baltimore. New York held about even. Big gainers were the warm-weather cities of Los Angeles, Houston, Dallas, San Diego, San Antonio and Phoenix.

—Farm population declined from 15 million to 10 million. Old migration patterns continued, from the center of the nation to the coasts and from South to North.

Stans said despite howls from localities that felt slighted in previously released preliminary counts, he thinks the 1970 census will prove to be the most accurate ever.

He said the bureau has completed rechecks involving 6½ million persons and turned up only 4,200 missed the first time around. He said he was sure that would be the case with the rest of the rechecks requested by localities.

Miner to Develop Comprehensive Plan

By CHARLES BRADY

MINER — The Miner board of trustees at 7:30 p.m. yesterday, set Sept. 16 at 7 p.m. for a meeting to clear the way for a comprehensive sketch plan for Miner.

It decided to have maps and other information available for Ronald Yersak, planner-in-charge, of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission at the meeting.

The plan is required before financial assistance can be obtained from Housing and Urban Development.

The board took under consideration an application from Charles Miller, owner of Louies Catfish Kitchens, for a license to serve 3.2 non-intoxicating beer by the drink. Michael Eakins will be in charge if the license is approved.

Including members of the Sikeston auxilary police, who live in or near Miner, to serve as officers in Miner was discussed.

James Martin, route two, Sikeston, a member of the auxillary police, was hired to work as deputy marshal when he is not working as an auxillary policeman. It was approved that Martin and Dorme Angle, police commissioner of Miner, will have authority to make arrests.

A discussion was held and carried over to the next meeting to put the Scott-New Madrid-Mississippi Electric Cooperative franchise money into a fire truck fund.

The water plant was approved by the board.

The Highway department will be asked to put signs up in Miner.

The board expressed displeasure over the rising cost of maintaining a two-man police department in Miner and the failure of officers to file reports.

"People are beginning to question it (the police department)", Chairman Harold Lewis said.

The board decided that a survey will be made of the streets before the streets are paved. The money for the paving will come from the street fund, which would allow the town to pay one-third of the cost.

Total receipts for Miner for August were $1,217.19. The general fund for August totaled $778.14 and the street fund totaled $346.32.

Residents Support Nixon War Position

Sikestonian and Sikeston area citizens approved today the Senate action yesterday in defeating 55 to 39 the McGovern- Hatfield "Amendment to End the War" in Vietnam in a random telephone survey conducted by the Standard.

In defeating the amendment sponsored by Senators George McGovern, Democrat of South Dakota, and Mark Hatfield, Republican of Oregon, the Senate turned down the proposal that the troops in Vietnam be pulled out by the end of 1971.

Critics had denounced the amendment as a blueprint for the first defeat in American history.

Of 20 persons polled in Sikeston, 17 said they agreed with the Senate, two said they disagreed, and one refused to comment.

Comments:

"I'm very pleased that the normally placid Senate finally put a stop to this nonsense about the war (in Vietnam). It looks like they are beginning to listen to the people."

"It's certainly a victory for the Nixon administration and for the people of the United States. Now maybe we can end this stupid war in the right and honorable way Nixon wants without someone trying to upset things."

A person who disagreed said: "I felt within my heart that it wouldn't pass but I hoped that it would. The amendment would put a stop to the senseless killing over there."

Results of the poll in other cities:

Benton: Three agreed with the Senate action and two disagreed.

Dexter: Five agreed with the Senate out of five polled.

Bloomfield: Four agreed with the Senate and one disagreed.

East Prairie: Three agreed with the Senate, one disagreed, and one refused to comment.

Charleston: Four agreed with the Senate and one disagreed.

New Madrid: Three agreed with the Senate and two disagreed. Portageville: Three agreed with the Senate and two disagreed.

Weightman Urges Ouster of Orton

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A special commissioner of the Missouri Supreme Court today recommended ouster of Pemiscot County Sheriff Clyde Orton for wilful violation and neglect of duty.

The special commissioner, former Circuit Judge Ray Weightman of Maryville, submitted his recommendations in a 43-page report to the court.

The court may accept his recommendations in full or partially or disregard them.

The ouster suit against Orton was filed last February by Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, now the Republican nominee for U.S. senator.

On the charge that Orton tried to arrange for a penitentiary parolee to murder Kyle Cook, a Caruthersville hay dealer, Judge Weightman said:

"This paragraph concerns Thomas Crews and the offered contract to commit murder. This incident is a pitiful one and it has to do with a man withterminal cancer trying to get out of the penitentiary.

"Your commissioner's conclusion in this matter is not that the respondent (Orton) failed in any duty."

Crews, 41, is serving a life sentence now in the Missouri penitentiary for the murder of a St. Louis policeman.

Weightman concluded that Orton was guilty on three counts of having permitted open gambling in the county, including rooster fighting in Hermondale.

"By his conduct in each of these three charges and offenses he forfeited the office of sheriff of Pemiscot County," Weightman held.

The news of the commissioner's recommendations drew an immediate rejoinder from Orton.

He was quoted as declaring in Caruthersville that if the Supreme Court accepts Weightman's recommendations and ousts him from office there will be a quick special election in Pemisot County.

"And I'll be on the ballot," he said.

The commissioner also found that Orton permitted liquor to be transported to dry areas of Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee without a proper bill of lading.

Three Caruthersville liquor establishments were closed by the state liquor control supervisor late in May for allegedly making large sales for out of state re-sale.

Judge Weightman concluded that Orton also forfeited his office for placing bets outside Missouri by telephone. He said that was a "violation of law and willful misconduct in office."

A final charge, that he disposed of some slot machines after they had been stored with him for several years—"without a court order" — Weightman called "another act of willful neglect and misconduct in office."

He quoted from another ouster case in which the court said "the officer who violates his oath of office by corruption, willful misconduct of elective official duty automatically loses the right to office and becomes a mere interloper."

With that authority, Weightman said, "the respondent, as sheriff, 'became a usurper' and as such his ouster must go as a matter of course."

The special commissioner recommended that the cost of the case should be taxed against Orton.

Weightman noted that during the hearings in Caruthersville last June the two sides produced a total of 104 witnesses.

"The respondent's witnesses were, for the most part, acquaintances and friends of the respondent because most of them were connected with law enforcement on a county level. Sheriffs and prosecutors from most of the neighboring Missouri counties testified that respondent was a good and cooperative sheriff.

"A sheriff from Tennessee and one from Arkansas also thought the respondent was a good officer. None of these officials heard any reports of the bad reputation of Pemiscot County."

But again quoting from earlier Supreme Court decisions, Weightman said "evidence of good character and professional reputation. . . did not have any tendency to disprove specific complaints."

The Supreme Court is expected to take several weeks before handing down a decision.

Troop Revisions Carried out

SAIGON (AP) — The United States pushed ahead today with two new moves to disengage American forces from Vietnam, and the U.S. commander, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, said the ability of the South Vietnamese to defend themselves "has been greatly enhanced."

On the battlefields, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces remained on the alert for attacks to mark North Vietnam's National Day today and the first anniversary Thursday of the death of President Ho Chi Minh. But so far the anticipated upsurge had not occurred. Government forces claimed 51 enemy killed in two clashes in the Mekong Delta 45 and 130 miles southwest of Saigon and said their own casualties were light.

In the latest step in the Vietnamization program, the U.S. Army transferred for the first time a complete helicopter company of 31 UH1 Huey helicopters worth nearly $8 million to the South Vietnamese air force. American officers said it was the beginning of a program of transfers of entire helicopter companies.

The helicopter company that was turned over to the Vietnamese, the 260-man 190th Assault Helicopter Company also is being disbanded.

This total is to be cut another 100,000 by next April.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

THE PARASITES

It is becoming more and more difficult to find words adequate to describe much of what we read in the news today. Take, for example, the Charles Manson gang, alleged killers of actress Sharon Tate and a number of other victims; or the Angela Davis- Black Panther mob who are the leading suspects in the cruel kidnapping and slaughter of Judge James McClain in San Rafael, California. How does one describe such people?

Recently the question was raised in a Washington, D.C. press group. "Barbarians, suggested one news writer.

"Too soft,' disagreed another."The word is 'savages.'"

Name calling? "Loaded" words? Far from it. Old Faithful describes a savage as "a person belonging to a primitive society; a brutal person; cruel, ferocious, uncultivated, wild; one who acts with cruelty or ferocity; an inhuman person, one who murders in cold blood."

Looking up the word "barbaric" we find that a barbarian is one who is "marked by a tendency toward brutality, violence, or lawlessness; relating to a people or group in a stage of cultural development about midway between savagery and full civilization."

So, it's take your choice. Barbarians or savages? The deeds fit the words, even to that of the primitive, cave-dwelling style of living adopted by many. Indeed, a bit of research shows that even among the most ancient, primitive tribes there was a higher level of sexual and social restraint than that shown by some of our 20th Century "primitives." Or, to put it another way, there are those among us whose level of humanity has dipped below that of many savage, primitive tribes. The goal of the Manson gang, if it has a goal, would appear to be that of adopting a style of behavior closer to that of animal than to man; such as scavenging garbage for food. They do so not out of necessity, but by choice; they are all able- bodied and perfectly capable of earning their way.

Steps must be taken to protect the human civil rights of our people from those parasites who choose to behave like barbarians and/or savages. Perhaps more important, we should seek to discover the causes of their degeneracy.

LEADING THE WAY

An industry that has a tradition of pushing back the frontiers of knowledge in the vast fields of medicine and health may well become a front-runner in finding waysof controlling wastes from industrial operations. One of the country's leading prescription drug manufacturing firms had completed a new plant with an advanced system of pollution control that reduces waste by- products by virtually 100 percent.

According to a press report, the company's engineers say the products to be manufactured each day by the plant could be hauled away in a single truck, but the processes at the same time will generate about 175,000 pounds of industrial waste. Under the new waste product disposal system, this mountain of waste material will be converted each day into stem for power generation, harmless gases, a high - protein feed additive for farm animals, and about 1,200 pounds of ashes. Total operating costs for waste treatment are expected to exceed $1.5 million annually. In commenting on the new plant, an official of the drug concern declared that it has been designed from the ground up to provide for "maximum -- not just acceptable -- control of wastes." Another official of the company added, "In our opinion, industry must accept a greater degree of responsibility for disposing of the wastes which it creates. We are hopeful that innovations in our new plant.. may also serve the purpose of pointing the way for other industries to a new approach for more effective control of pollution."

It is significant that this marked advance in waste free industrial operation is the work of a member of the prescription drug industry -- the same industry with which investigators, politicians and a multitude of crusaders have found nothing but fault for over a decade. Its accomplishments in the development of livesaving drugs have time after time been over- shadowed by punitive attacks including criticism of the profits it has earned which are so essential to new drug research and more lately, to its pioneering ventures in pollution control.

WHAT DOES THE FUTURE HOLD

Recently, we reprinted portions of a letter from a friend and adviser in New York who wrote us about inflation – and gain he has written us another note which we publish as follows:

"For generations one thing which the rest of theworld admired about the United States was the political stability of our government. When you look back over the past hundred years you see a peaceful transormation of power at every election whether Federal, State or municipal. This is an enviable record. It is one that is matched by only a few other countries.

"Weak governments have usually spelled inflation. Weak governments have never overcome rampant inflation. Today we find the American government itself still strong. But we do find an instability coming into the political arena that is shocking all those abroad. A year ago, we travelled around the world. In practically every country that we went we were asked about the recurring riots in places like Los Angeles, Detroit, Newark and other cities across the country. Whether in Sydney, Johannesburg, Nairobi, London or Dublin, people asked about student unrest and the riots that were taking place on university campuses. Foreigners just could not understand how the American system had gone from such a stable institution to one that was rocked by riots, student strikes, fire bombings and assassinations. They pointed out that, when law and order collapses, political instability is not very far behind. When political instability arrives on the scene, explosive inflation is close by. The German Weimar Government and those which succeeded it were politically unstable and they led the way to a dictatorship. The political instability of France and Italy resulted in severe periods of inflation and currency collapse. Following the overthrow of dictatorships in South America we found governments unable to cope with political or economic reality. Their instability in the political sphere resulted in instability in the economic sphere.

"We have reviewed many of the similarities that have existed in countries where inflation became explosive and where fortunes have been wiped out. These similarities however do not necessarily mean that we are going to face the same type of inflation. There are differences and they are important differences. They should not be ignored. The differences can very well mean that inflation can be contained or even that deflation may set in. Take a look at the Government we have in power today. It is a strong Government. Its leaders have made strong decisions that are not always popular. Personally, we don't think the present Administration is out to win a popularity contest On the other hand it is making a definite attempt to cope with economic excesses, to reduce unrest and to withdraw from the quagmire of Southeast Asia in an orderly fashion. All of these are tied in with the inflation we are experiencing. The Administration has not always succeeded. It has many pressures upon it from minority groups of every stripe. These are social, political and economic. Let us say that the minority groups are not all racial. They also include those to the extreme left of the Government and those to the extreme right. They include those who want no social spending and those who would spend the last printed dollar on social welfare. They include pressures from every area of America's melting pot.

"It is hard to separate the social from the political and the economic. If you do not go along with a social welfare program, then you are threatened with political reprisal. If you do not spend money then you cannot finance the welfare program. If the Government in power yields to all pressures– and politically it is popular to do so -- then it is possible and probable for inflation to go beyond the crisis stage into the explosive stage. Congress, for example, has increased by several billion dollars the money bills that the President wanted put through. Four of these were vetoed because this spending will drive up the prices that everyone pays. Until spending in Washington is actually brought into line with income there will be serious inflationary pressures. If we return to the spending of a few years ago, pressures would become explosive. If Washington spending is cutback and surpluses are produced then the pressures will ease.

"Until these pressures are eased, it is up to the Federal Reserve, with its control of the monetary system, to hold back the inflationary trend. To do this it must adopt unpopular politicies. Again, we want to point out that we are of the opinion that inflation in this country will be contained. We again want to point out that there is a price you must pay for this containment.

Recently, the Congress of the United States, through a special subcommittee headed by Rep. John Blatnik, conducted hearings to look into the matter of signs, and related traffic control devices, on our nation's roads and streets. What they found out was not altogether reassuring.

For instance, a witness from the U.S. Department of Transportation revealed that a government study shows only about half of the traffic signs, and related devices, in the nation meet standards defined in the officially- recognized "manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices." A non- standard sign might be too small, unreflectorized so it cannot be easily seen at night, the wrong shape or color, or contain the wrong words or symbols.

Non- standard signs, the witness indicated, are a major cause of driver confusion, and are therefore very dangerous.

Two statistics in the government study were particularly interesting.

The Federal government pays a large share of the cost of building most of our better roads; therefore, it can require that signs on these roads conform to standards as outlined in the Manual. Still, information out of the Blatnik hearings indicates that one out of every four signs on these Federal- aid roads is non- standard.

Even more serious is the fact that, on roads built with city and county funds only, almost seven out of 10 signs are non- standard.

About the same time, another Blatnik committe witness testified that poor traffic signs as a major source of driver complaint. Based on findings of the government study, above, it is easy to see why this is so.

The purpose of traffic signs is to make driving easier and safer. Yet, the Blatnik hearings show that some of our authorities, particularly some of those in local governmental units, do not place the same importance on traffic signs as drivers, themselves, place on them.

Good traffic signs are the most inexpensive part of the overall cost of building a road. Hopefully, testimony from the Blatnik committee hearings will encourage sign upgrading and standardization as a low- cost means of saving lives on our highways.

Tonight when you look back over the day you will recall many annoyances. You hope tomorrow will be better, but when tomorrow and the other tomorrows have come and gone, you probably will look back on today as one of the happiest of your life. What a roseate hue time throws over the past!

The retired sea captain of Her Majesty's Navy was quaffing some ale in his favorite pub. He looked so gloomy, that the barkeep asked him what was the trouble.

"It's the wife," said the captain sadly, "she says she will leave me if I don't stop running around with other women."

"A pity," consoled the barkeep

"Righto," consoled the barkeep.

"Righto. I'm going to miss her."

PILL'S EFFECT ON HEART ... MAN'S

There may be more perils to the Pill than the claims of bloodclotting and cancer which occupied the attention of recent Senate subcommittee hearings.

A London doctor warns that some women taking birth control pills, freed from the fear of unwanted pregnancy, are killing their husbands with love.

"To a man of 40," says the doctor, as quoted by the Health Bulletin, "after a strenuous day at the office, this can be a great strain on the heart."

Especially if he has been chasing his secretary around the desk all day.

TOSSED SALAD

While campaigning in a rural section of the Midwest for a Congressional seat, a politician ran into an unfriendly crowd at one stop. Halfway through his speech he was suddenly pelted with tomatoes and overripe fruit. His presence of mind, however, did not fail him. His next remark, as he wiped the missiles off his face and shirt front, turned boos into cheers.

"My critics," he said jauntily, "may not think I know much about farm problems- but they'll have to admit I'm being a big help with the farm surplus!"

CARD SENSE

The office secretary presented the salesman's card to her boss, who promptly tore it in two and tossed it in the trash basket. "Tell him I can't see him," the boss snorted.

But when the secretary delivered the message, the salesman smiled, "Then ask him if I may have my card back; they're expensive." Sputtering, the boss gave his secretary a quarter for the salesman.

When he girl delivered the coin, the salesman gave her another card. "Tell him they're two for a quarter," he said.

The salesman got to see his client.

The interest rate paid to banks by independent business may be softening a bit.

This is indicated by a detailed computer study of the returns in January to the continuous field survey of the National Federation of Independent Business.

The survey question asks respondents if they took out a loan in the past six months, what rate of interest was charged. Thus, the report for January does not reflect the rate charged in that one month, but is an average rate paid since last August.

On this basis, the national average shows a rate of 8.4 percent, reflecting an unbroken increase of 1/10th of one (1) percent per month since January, 1969.

However, a study by regions shows some softening in various areas. Although the New England, East north central, West south central, and Pacific States show increases ranging from one (1) to 3/10ths of one (1) percent, the Middle Atlantic and Mountain States show no increase. In the South Atlantic and East south central states a drop of one (1) to 2/10ths of one (1) percent is recorded.

The number of loans to independent firms dropped in January to the lowest level in three years, showing up at only 28 percent as compared to 33 percent in mid- 1969.

ALL OR NUTHIN'...

The couple was attending a convention. She had just stepped out of the shower, and he was just entering. "By the way, dear," he said, "did you set my shoes out in the hall to be shined?" "No, I forgot," replied the dutiful wife. "I'll do it now."

Stepping to the door with her husband's shoes in hand — remember, she's as nude as is possible to get — she opened it and cautiously peered up and down the hall. But just as she stooped to set the shoes down, a very tipsy conventioner barged around the corner.

The woman straightened up and clasped the does to her middle in an attempt to hide herslef.

"The drunk took a look and yelled, "Atta boy, buddy - give her all you got!"

"Dear Son: Since you went to the army, your pa got himself a job. His bring- home pay is $52 after them taxes is took out. We sent to Sears, Roebuck for one of them new - fangled gadgets they call bathrooms. They sent a feller called Plummer to set it up. On one side of the room, they's a long thing like a pig trough, only it's for humans to wash in with their clothes off. On the other side, they's a sink to dunk your face and hands in. In the corner they's a real funny contraption. You wash your foot in it, then pull a chain and get fresh water for the other foot. They was two lids with the danged thing, but we couldn't find any use for them, so I'm using one in the kitchen for a bread board. The other one wouldn't have been much use, anyway, it had a big hole right through the middle, but Pa used it to frame our wedding picture. Them Sears, Roebuck folks is sure nice people to deal with. They even sent along a free roll of writing paper with the outfit. Take care of yourself and keep an eye peeled for the enemy. Love, Mama.

Once there were twin brothers named Jack and Jim. Jack was married and Jim was still single but the proud owner of a dilpaidated old boat. Disaster struck them both on the same day; Jack's wife died and Jim's boat sunk. A few days later, Jim met a friend on the street who mistook him for Jack and offered his sympathies, saying, "You must feel terrible!"

Jim replied, "Oh, not really. She was an old wreck from the beginning. Her bottom was all shrivelled up and she smelled like dead fish. The first time I got in her she made water faster than anything I've ever seen. There was a bad crack in her back and a pretty big hole in the front. The hole got bigger every time I used her and she leaked like crazy. But what finished her was, these five guys I know borrowed her. I told them she wasn't very good but they said they'd take a chance with her anyhow so I rented her out. Then the crazy fools tried to get into her all at once and it was too much for her. She cracked right up the middle."

At this point the friend fainted...

H.L. Hunt Says

THE INEVITABLE RESULTS

There is a foolish sociological theory to the effect that if you treat criminals with more concern that the good working, law abiding, tax paying citizens are treated, the criminals won't be criminals. This goes along with such nonsense as disarming the citizenry disarming the police and disarming the nation.

Historical examples abound to illustrate the foolishness of such theories where disarmament treaties have been negotiated, based on ivory -tower theories that aggressive governments really wish to be peaceful. When agressive leaders get control of a nation, disarmament treaties have proved futile in preventing secret rearmament and attacks on peaceful neighbors.

Now we have a tragic example of the futility of disarming lawmen, so as not to be "offensive to public taste." A judge who was a leader in this movement to disarm the lawmen on duty in his courthouse now lies in his grave with half his head blown off by a sawed -off shotgun.

The judge is dead because a young hoodlum entered his courtroom and issued weapons to convicts who had been brought before the judge for a hearing. Unarmed officers were held at bay while the judge, a prosecutor and several jurors were taken hostage, including innocent women. Of course, sawed -off shotguns are illegal in the first place, but criminals care nothing for legalities. Disarming the lawmen only makes criminal acts easier. Disarming the citizenry, too, would make criminal acts extremely simple. The only question remaining would be which takes over first, the criminals or the communists. HLH

By RANDOLPH SCHMID

Associated Press Writer MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — One of my childhood images built up by years of movie-going has been ruined. I took a pinch of snuff, held it to my nose, inhaled sharply, and failed to sneeze.

For some reason the dandies in all the old Erroll Flynn movies always sneezed. I was a little disappointed. It was an interesting experience, though, and surprisingly pleasant.

America's current fashion movement toward many of the styles that were popular long ago seems, although quietly, to be affecting the snuff industry.

The snuff makers estimate that more than six million Americans now use snuff--although less than one per cent of them inhale it.

Tom Vaughan of the Conwood Crop., in Memphis, formerly known as the American Snuff Co., explained that Americans lost their taste for inhaling snuff right after the Revolutionary War. Since then, he said, almost all Americans have used snuff by placing it between the lower lip and gum in their mouth.

Basically snuffs, the dipping kind you put in your mouth, are either dry or moist with moist popular in the north and dry in the South.

Conwood is now test marketing sniffing snuff for the first time in this country, to see if it will catch on. In fact in a move for convenience the company is also selling what it calls "Snuffettes." These are little tablets of compressed snuff which you can pop into your mouth without worrying about spilling all that finely ground tobacco all over the place.

"Snuff which you inhale can be especially good at breaking the ice at a dull party," VAughan commented, "it brought most of the people around me asking what it was and wanting to try it."

Snuff was bing regularly used by the Indians when Columbus landed and, of course, his crew took the habit back to Europe where it took society by storm.

After a grand age in the 17th and 18th centuries snuff use declined, giving way to smoking. It climed again during World War II, when thousands of servicemen chose to chew rather than show their positionwith a lighted cigarette.

To the uninitiated, chew snuff tastes rather like mild chewing tobacco, although its first few uses can make you sick.

Starting in 1949 snuff use took a dip and continued steadily down until three years ago, when the trend began reversing itself.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON – The most exhaustive congressional investigation of organized crime in more than a decade has been set in motion by Sen. John McClellan, the owlish Arkansas Democrat who originally put the spotlight on the Mafia during the 1950s.

Since the sensational crime hearings held by the late Sen. Estes Kefauver and by McClellan, less skilled ringmasters have tried repeatedly to expose the national crime network. All their attempts have failed.

Meanwhile the Mafia has prospered and diversified its activities. Older enterprises such as prostitution have been abandoned in favor of more businesslike ventures ranging from pornography to banking.

In recent times, the cantankerous McClellan has been preoccupied with undistinguished investigations into the poverty program, ghetto riots and student uprisings.

For the last three years, the Senator's staff has been exploring the idea of a major probe of the Mafia. They polled police chiefs across the country to determine how far organized crime had reached into legitimate business.

The tentative new battle plans call for focusing separately on Mafia activities in labor rackets, loan sharking, narcotics, stolen goods, gambling and pornography.

Extortion, hijacking, credit card theft, milking of legitimate businesses and stolen securities will also be explored.

McClelland will spotlight the Mafia functionaries in each area, rather than taking the easier and more familiar approach of giving the genealogy of the "crime families." As a result, there will be some overlap. For example, the same hoodlums may well turn up in both the gambling and loan shark rackets.

A whole new generation of young Mafia captains has sprung up since the Kefauver and McClellan hearings.

But McClellan has been taking on young investigators to deal with them. The Senator does not expect to get hearings going until sometime next year.

Then, beneath the TV lights in the historic Senate caucus room, the 74 -year- old McClellan will make what may be his final stand against the mob.

EXECS WOULD SHOOT DOWN HANKS

The Business Executive Move for Vietnam Peace has been working secretly with New York advertising and public relations men on plans for an expensive campaign to defeat 20 of the most hawkish members of the House.

The businessmen, who have considerable resources, expect to flood the districts of the 20 congressmen with TV spots, newspaper ads, and campaign literature.

Most of their targets occupy strategic spots on the House Armed Services and Appropriations Committees, which have consistently supported the war.

The group is purposely passing over such shoo -ins as Armed Services Chairman Mendel Rivers, D-S.C. Instead, they will concentrate on men such as Phil Philbin, D-Mass., the ancient chairman of a powerful military subcommittee who is opposed by Father Robert Drinan, a fiery Jesuit peace advocate.

Another target is irascible John Rooney, D-N.Y., who runs his Appropriations subcommittee like a warlord. He was almost upset by a peace candidate in the primary.

When it began, the Business Executives Move was composed mostly of small businessmen. It now has won over corporate presidents such as George Weissman of Philip Morris. Even GOP stalwart Sinclair Armstrong, Wall Street banker and former Securities and Exchange Chairman, has joined the movement.

They have been quietly assisted by Louis Lundborg, Bank of America chairman and a closefriend of the group's head, insurance company chairman Henry Niles.

Lundborg, who is not a member of the group, told key congressmen that an end to the war would be good, not bad for big business.

BRAZIL TORTURE EYED

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee hopes to hold hearings this fall on torture of prisoners by Brazilian authorities.

The Brazilian government has been stamping out dissent with torture, according to unimpeachable sources. The Senate committee comes into the act because it has jurisdiction on what U.S. AID funds go to the giant South American country.

RED GUERRILLAS IN THAILAND

A secret war goes on in Thailand largely unknown to the rest of the world. The Bangkok government discourages visits into hills and forest where guerrilla activity smolders and flames.

A recent survey by a Quaker investigating team disclosed insurgency of one kind or another in 31 of Thailand's 71 provinces. The team also discovered communist -style civil warfare in some localities.

The guerrilla activity has been fed by discontent among Thai minorities such as the Meo tribesmen, Laotians and Malays.

BLUE CROSS PROB ED

Sen. Phil Hart's Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee has begun a full -scale probe of soaring Blue Cross and Blue Shield costs.

Hart, D-Mich., has found that the giant insurers are among the most generous of companies. They pay out about 95 cents of ever dollar they take in.

However, his early findings indicate that Blue Cross and Blue Shield have failed to challenge enough hospital bills. Consequently, they have had to boost premiums to cover the excess charges.

Ann Landers

Girl, 18, Wants Cure For Chronic Insomnia Because Work Won't Do It

Dear Ann Landers: I'm an 18 -year -old girl with a problem that has been bugging me for months. I can't sleep. It seems I put off going to bed by doing all sorts of crazy things late at night – like cleaning closets, polishing shoes, sewing buttons. I busy myself with chores because I know I won't be able to sleep and I hate the tossing and turning.

The main reason I can't sleep is because I worry about what will happen to me if I don't get enough rest. I worry about getting sick, looking haggard, fainting from exhaustion and things like that.

Some mornings I'm certain I didn't sleep at all. Is this possible? Later in the day I remember bits and pieces of dreams. If a person dreams it means they slept, doesn't it? You can see how mixed up I am. This letter is being written at 2:30 A.M. Can you help me? --Night Owl.

Dear Owl: Most people get more sleep than they realize --- and as much as their bodies require -- unless, of course, there is an unusual amount of emotional stress.

Insomniacs would have less trouble sleeping if they went to bed at approximately the same time every night and planned on just "resting." People who busy themselves cleaning closets and writing letters until the wee hours of the morning will not sleep better when they do go to bed. Most insomniacs suffer more from worrying about their insomnia than from the damage done by lack of sleep.

Dear Ann Landers: I enclose a letter from a reader in Bridgeton, N.J. I hope this helps solve another reader's "flea problem." ---J.M. McM. -- Philadelphia Inquirer

Dear Executive Editor: Ordinarily I would just read Ann Landers column and say, "There but for the grace of God go I" – but the woman who has been scratching herself for months while the doctors can find nothing wrong, might have a bad case of synthetic fiber draperies.

Don't laugh. I tell you true. The woman may have picked up the affliction in someone else's home, but it is more than likely that she has synthetic fiber draperies in her own home and while laundering them (dip and hang – no ironing) she may have rubbed some of the minute particles under her skin.

I would be obliged if you would pass this information along to Ann Landers. --J.P.

Dear J.P.: It is true that contact with synthetic fibers -- in draperies, furniture covers, and clothing can produce severe itching. But a good dermatologist would not find this such a mysterious affliction. He would take a simple scraping of the itching skin and examine it under a microscope. The crystalline structure of the synthetic particles would be apparent.

Dear Ann Landers: Please wire collect the name and address of the woman in North Carolina who is sure she has E.S.P. She claims she knows what is going to happen in advance and stated several instances where she was correct -- but no one would listen.

I will not only listen, I will pay her plane fare to Indianapolis. We will then go together to Las Vegas and on to the gaming tables at Monte Carlo. I am not kidding, Ann. If you help me locate her I will cut you in. --R.R.J.

Dear R.R.J.: No deal, Dad. If the lady had these extraordinary powers she could go to Las Vegas and Monte Carlo without you --- and without ME, too. I'm not interested.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self -addressed envelope.

HOUSE OF DARK SHADOWS is an old- fashioned, vampire invades family, terror story. Dracula has got nothin' on Dark Shadows!

In a breath- taking setting in the modern English 'country-side,' a blood-taking monster (Barnabas Collins portrayed by a rugged, dark-haired man) is released from a chained- shut casket by a jewel hunting drunk (Willy). The vampire (Barnabas attacks Willy and brings him under power.

Then Barnabas, who has been dead and in his coffin 200 years, attacks Maggie, the governess of David, son of the only remaining adult decedent of Barnabas' family (Elizabeth Collins Davis). Maggie survives the attack and is treated in Collinswood, the family mansion, by Julia, a doctor who has taken a sabbatical leave from her practice and is doing a history of the Collins family, from the family journals.

When Barnabas goes to meet the family formally, he presents Elizabeth a necklace of diamonds and emeralds which belonged to her grandmother (so many greats back) 200 years ago. He also presented the family a believable story about being a descendant of the original Barnabas, and a desire to live in the old house where that Barnabas lives. Granted this permission by Elizabeth and her husband, Roger Barnabas takes Willy, now his slave, into the house and begins the re-furbishing.

There is a 'rash' of vampire attacks in the community, the doctor discovers Barnabas does not reflect in a mirror, decides he is a vampire and Carolyn Stoddard, daughter of Elizabeth, dies from a vampire wound.

Barnabas falls in love with Maggie and decides to take her as his bride vampire style. Her fiance objects. Ahem...

And the bloody, nauseating mess continues... at the Malco Twin Cinema, opening tonight. The worst sound in the movie is the vampire(s) slurping blood from necks of victims. The next to the worst is the scream from the vampires as wooden pegs are driven through their hearts while the blood spurts from their chests and gurgles out of their mouths.

Opposite The CHRISTINE JORGENSON STORY...

At the Malone, GETTING STRAIGHT with Candace Bergen and Elliott Gould opens tonight and will be reviewed in the Thursday Daily Standard. It will play one week.

Herb Adderley Turns Cowboy

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Pro Bowl figured in Herb Adderley's troubles with the Green Bay Packers. Now it figures in his plans with the Dallas Cowboys.

Tuesday, the Cowboys sent center Malcolm Walker and defensive end Clarence Williams to Green Bay for Adderley who had refused to report to the Packers.

After last season, Adderley, a star cornerback, accused Coach Phil Bengtson and his staff of keeping him off the Pro Bowl team.

"I'm very grateful to Coach Bengtson for giving me the opportunity to play in another Super Bowl game," Adderley, who will be starting his 10th National Football League season," said from his home in Philadelphia.

"The way things were going I figured I'd wind up with a second division club. But with the Cowboys, I feel we have just as good a chance to go all the way as anybody."

The Adderley deal was the biggest development in a day of trading and cutting by NFL clubs.

In another swap, the Chicago Bears sent defensive end Dick Evey and an undisclosed draft pick to the Los Angeles Rams for wide receiver Jim Seymour and defensive back Ron Smith.

Los Angeles Coach George Allen called Evey, a seven-year veteran "just one heck of a football player."

Allen also said, "It's a break for Seymour since it will give him a chance to play regularly."

Pittsburgh and New Orleans also figured in a trade, the Steelers sending veteran running back Earl Gros to New Orleans for an undisclosed draft choice. Gros is an eight-year NFL veteran.

Among veterans waived were running back Perry Lee Dunn, by the Baltimore Colts, and running back Chuck Mercein, by the Washington Redskins.

A HAND FULL OF DOVES for this group of St. Louis and St. Louis county hunters, who came to the Sikeston area, who tried their skill on opening day Tuesday. This group of hunters were among around 40 hunters and their wives who were checked in at the El Capri motel for the opening day. The season lasts until Oct. 30, with the limit 10 birds per day. From left they are W. D. Nichols, Mickey Salmon, J. G. Henges Jr., Mrs. Michael E. Spatz, William C. Seibert, and Dr. A. W. Stickle.

Why The Decline

Shooting down the theories on why mourning dove breeding populations continue to show a gradual but steady decline is much easier than bringing down the flitting grey ghosts of the autumn grainfields themselves.

"The size of the breeding population is down," sayd Ken Sadler, dove biologist for the Department of Conservation. "And it has been going down in Missouri since 1959. There has been an almost uninterrupted decline."

But not to panic: "I don't thingk at this point it's serious. The size of the dove population, even though it is down, still is sufficiently large to sustain the kind of pressure we get from hunting."

One by one the possible reasons for the decline can be picked apart. The first that springs to mind is overhunting. Missouri is in what is called the Central Management Unit where the daily bag limit last year was 10.

Illinois is in the Eastern Management Unit and this unit last year started a three year experimental bag limit of 18 per day. "Interestingly," Sadler says, "When the Eastern Unit increased the daily limit from 12 to 18, the total kill rose only three per cent. Estimates were that there were 14 per cent more hunters and the total hunting trips were nearly the same as the year before. Our own information indicates that hunting is not an important cause of dove mortality in the Central Unit."

So if the problem isn't hunting, then how about habitat loss? This is a vital problem affecting virtually every species of Missouri wildlife -- except doves.

"Doves are much less vulnerable to habitat loss than most other game species. Modern agriculture isn't particularily detrimental to doves -- in fact, provides much food."

Another possibility is pesticide poisoning. One test for pesticide damage is eggshell thickness. The U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife ran a test of dove eggshell thickness, using some pre-DDT shells as a measure, but found no significant difference.

That doesn't rule out some effect by poisons. Only recently has evidence neen turned up that indicates waterfowl in some areas are being affected by mercury poisoning.

"If we had an absolutely stable environement," Sadler says, "I'm not sure we would have a stable wildlife population. Many species are cyclical, such as rabbits.

"Now, whether the dove is or not, I don't know. The dove population very well could go on a slow climb just as it has gone on a slow decline."

Part of the problem is that doves are migratory and for that reason are hard to study. They don't have the relatively easy to locate and study breeding areas that waterfowl have.

As Sadler says, the slow decline of breeding populations is not yet serious

Teal Season Looks Good

JEFFERSON CITY — Everything looks good for teal, those quail-sized quackers who head south well ahead of the first breath of winter wind.

Missouri is one of several states which will have a special teal season on bluewing, greenwing and cinnamon. The Missouri season is Sept. 12-20. "There's a lot of wild food," says Mike Milonski, assistant game division chief for the Department of Conservation. "There's food where we didn't have it last year. Barring floods, we should have a fine special season."

These special seasons put an obligation on Missouri sportsmen to identify their ducks before they shoot. Any heavy kill of ducks other than teal almost certainly would result in cancellation of future special hunts by Department of the Interior which manages waterfowl.

"You find all kinds of guns and shot size being used," Milonski says. "But many good teal hunters prefer small shot -- a 7½ - shot shell is a good one -- and a light, easy-to-handle gun with about a modified choke."

Teal can be confused with shovelers and wood ducks, neither of which will be legal during the teal season. Conservation agents will be working long hours in an attempt to cut down the illegal kill.

There is no special permit necessary, but all hunters must have a valid small game hunting permit and hunters 16 years old and over must have a signed waterfowls stamp on the permit.

Bag limits are four daily and eight in possession. The Department of Conservation has available teal identification leaflets. Enclosed a stamped, self=-addressed envelope.

Cards Fall 7 Back

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Utility infielder Wayne Garrett has found a way to succeed against fireballing Bob Gibson where others have failed.

Batting against Gibson six times Tuesday night, Garrett collected four singles and walked once in leading the New York Mets to a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in 12 innings.

The versatile Met led off the final inning with his fourth hit, stole second base and sped to third as Milt Ramirez let catcher Ted Simmons' throw go into center field.

Garrett then crossed home plate after Cleon Jones lofted a sacrifice fly to center that settled the marathon contest.

"Maybe he's just giving me pitches," the 22-year-old Garrett quipped in reference to Gibson (19-6), who failed in an attempt to become the major leagues' fourth 20-game winner of the season.

"Maybe he doesn't think I'm a hitter. Against Gibson, those four hits are enough for the whole season," Garrett said.

Garrett singled in the first and scored the Mets first run on Art Shamsky's two-out triple.

He singled again in the sixth and grounded out in the eighth before collecting his third single of the night in the 10th inning.

The red-haired infielder said Gibson had dealt him a steady ration of fast balls and noted, "When he threw me a curve ball, I just laid off it because I'm a fast-ball hitter.

"I'm going to make the pitcher make the mistakes, not me," Garrett said.

Gibson nursed a 2-1 lead into the ninth before misfortune overhauled him.

Jones' hard ground ball bounced off shortstop Ed Crosby's glove into center field for a double and one out later Donn Clendenon smashed another ground ball that eluded Crosby for a single, scoring Jones.

The Mets Jerry Grote gave his team a 3-2 lead in the 11th by singling and racing home on Ed Kranepool's first pinch hit in 22 tries this season after Joe Foy worked Gibson for a walk.

But St. Louis tied it in its 11th on singles by Jim Beauchamp, Joe Torre and Simmons.

The victory was hailed as "a big one, awfully big" by Met Manager Gil Hodges, whose team remained 1½ games back of the National League's Eastern Division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

"Some times it just looks like we aren't supposed to win games like this," Cardinal Manager Red Schoendienst commented. The loss dropped the Cards seven games back in the division race.

Tigers Promote Back

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Missouri's corps of strong running backs apparently has another recruit in Bill Mauser, a junior from Belleville, Ill.

His second-effort performance in last Saturday's scrimmage earned Mauser a promotion from the third string to sharing the No. 2 tailback spot with rookie Booker Washington.

Master showed he could ably replace Joe Moore, James Harrison or Mike McKee. His emergence also indicates sophomore Jack Bastable could be free to become a kicking specialist for punts, field goals and conversions.

Iowa State's coach, Johnny Majors, says his offense is ahead of the defense after five days of practice. Much of the improvement has been by offensive tackles Geary Murdock and Tom Barnes, Majors said Tuesday.

Murdock, who weighed 260 pounds as a freshman last spring, reported for fall practice at 238. The Cyclones will have their first scrimmage today.

Coach vince Gibson worked his Kansas Staters three hours despite scorching heat Tuesday, nearly half of the time in scrimmage, and pointed out that two punts and one field goal were blocked.

"We've got to get our kicking game and especially our punting cranked up," Gibson said. John Duckers, one of the punters, has a knee injury, putting the full burden on sophomore Joe Brandt. Quarterback Lynn Dickey may be ready to go by Friday or next Monday as his bruised ribs show improvement, Gibson said.

The Kansas Jayhawks have to do better on the pass rush and kicking game, Coach Pepper Rodgers said. He scheduled a game-type scrimmage Saturday in the stadium, to be closed to the public.

"We'll play the team we hope to beat Washington State with, against the rest, including freshmen," Rodgers said. "It will not be a fair game. If it is, we haven't selected the right players."

The Nebraska defense still is worrying Coach Bob Devaney, especially the lack of a good pass rush. He said the defensive secondary did a good job of covering receivers in Tuesday's scrimmage.

Devaney said sophomore tackle Rich Glover looks "like a good football player." Jeff Kinney, running back, apparently was recovered from a hamstring muscle pull.

Rain failed to halt the Oklahoma Sooners, who turned from their muddy practice field to the artificial turf in Owens Stadium and Coach Chuck Fairbanks said they "had another good workout." He had special praise for the defense.

A Bad Trip

COLUMBIA — A few fish are beginning to recover from a bad trip on acid -- but some 17,000 other aren't. They are dead. It wasn't LSD that turned these fish off-it was sulphuric acid.

The acid is from strip mine operations near Rocky Fork a small wadefish stream north of here. Beginning Aug. 23, four pits on an area mined by Peabody Coal overflowed into Rocky Fork, discharging a slug of acid water.

The acid water caused irritation to fish gills in about five miles of stream. The fish secreated mucous to sooth the irritation and the buildup of mucous suffocated an estimated 17,000 of them.

"This used to be a typical Ozark type small stream," says Pete Redmon, water quality investigator for the Department of Conservation. "There was some pretty good bass fishing. But in the last year or two, erosion from the mine area has brought in a lot of clay which covers the stream bottom. Now this acid."

It wasn't a total kill. There were a few sunfish left and some of the hardier fish such as carp. But most bass were killed and most bluegills, Suckers almost all died.

This was the second major acid fish kill in central Missouri in a month. The other was on Cedar Creek, a popular fishing stream which forms the border between Boone and Callaway Counties. Acid from an abandoned strip mine area killed thousands of fish in Cedar Creek.

The Coalition for the Preservation of the Good Earth, a group formed in June, expressly to work out a set of mining laws to present to the next session of the Legislature, had toured the Boone County strip mine areas the week before the Rocky Fork fish kill.

Missouri has had a bad year for fish kills with well over 500,000 fish dead from five major reported fish kills. Pesticides, low oxygen and acid have been the causes.

ROCKY FORK is dead. Holding a scientific wake over this little stream north of Columbia are Bud Fuchs, water quality biologist for the Department of Conservation (right) and Mike Headrick, fisheries assistant. The fish kill, caused by acident leakage from strip mine pits, killed an estimated 17,000 fish. The inset shows a buildup of mucous which fish secrete to sooth the irritation to their gills caused by the acid. The fish actually suffocates himself in mucous. (Department of Conservation photo)

Tribe Loses Tackle

CAPE GIRARDEAU — There's good news today for Southeast Missouri State College's 10 football opponents this fall. Hefty Tim Luckett, a big 6-4, 240-pound defensive tackle from Bruceville, Ind., will not be playing this season.

Tom Throwe, head coach at Southeast Missouri, said Tuesday that Luckett's left knee, in which he suffered torn ligaments about midway through the 1969 season, is not strong enough to allow him to play. "In fact," said Thrower, "the knee has a fibrous growth which is going to have to be removed."

Luckett, considered until now a top professional prospect, reported to camp last Thursday and wanted badly to play, Thrower said. "But we could tell after Friday, the first day of workouts, that he was not going to be able to."

In disclosing the news about the big tackle, Thrower expressed disappointment but did not seem overly distressed. "We'd been watching him," the coach said, "and had not been counting on him. It would have been like a Christmas present had he been able to make it this year."

A senior, Luckett could choose to take a light schedule of classes this year and perhaps stay around the campus long enough to get his final year of eligibility in. "He'll have to make that decision," said Thrower. "There's really no assurance the knee will ever be strong enough for football again."

Thrower and his assistants, Bruce Hoffman, Ken Hargens, Dutch Meyr, and Jim Lohr, are currently putting their gridiron candidates through two-a-day practices sessions. These will continue through next Tuesday.

No contact work is permitted by the NCAA during the first three days of practice, so the team concentrated on learning the Indians' offense and defense. But once the pads were donned, no time was wasted in getting down to business.

The team scrimmaged Tuesday night for the first time and other scrimmages are planned this week, leading up to an intra-squad contest under game conditions at 7:30 Friday night a Houck Stadium.

"Our squad is in better physical condition than it was at this time last yer," Thrower commented, "and most of our players have retained the speed and quickness developed during spring practice. We're even pleased with our big guys. Only a couple came in overweight, and most were six or seven pounds lighter than the weight we had established for them."

Southeast Missouri opens its 10-game schedule on Sept. 19 in Cleveland, Miss., against Delta State College.

House in Ste. Genevieve Accepted As Historic Site

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A stone house of formal English-American architecture, built in Ste. Genevieve in the early 19th Century and once the home of a commander when the area was Spanish, has been accepted as part of the State Park Board's historic site program.

It is called the Valle-Rozier House and was at one time the home of Jean Baptiste Valle, a commander under the Spanish and later the first American civil and military commandant.

The house and property were given to the park board by Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Rozier of Wyoming and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Duncan of Texas.

Recreational Complex to Open

Clyde Wilson and M. B. Estes, principals of Wilson & Estes, Inc. have announced the grand opening Saturday through Monday of Pirates Cove, a recreational complex of Kentucky Lake. They have both been in business in Sikeston for a number of years and say they feel that through their joint effort they can develop one of the finest recreational facilities in this area.

Pirates Cove consist of a complete subdivision with both building lots and trailer sites, a 3,000 foot air port and camping and picnic facilities. A complete marina facility will be developed next year ane eventually a nine hole golf course.

Pirates Cove is located on Jonathan Creek one- half mile off highway 80, five miles west of Ken Lake State Park.

Wilson & Estes invite the public to visit the project during grand opening.

Bond Renews Criticism of State Office

Kit Bond, Republican candidate for state auditor, was in Sikeston yesterday morning at a meeting at the El Capri.

Bond said that people are losing confidence in state government and that now, "Missouri operates under a horse and buggy audit procedure."

When asked to comment on Gov. Warren E. Hearnes statement that he (Bond) would make the auditor's office nothing more than a witch-hunt, Bond said, "If witches are to be found, then he (Hearnes) knows his administration better than I."

Bond also criticized State Auditor Haskell Holman's handeling of the Babler State Park incident. He said that the state auditor's office should have been asking questions and investigating this matter, but the facts in the case were not brought to light until investigations by the press.

"The auditor should have asked why these things happened," Bond said.

A debate between Bond and Holman is scheduled for Oct. 7, before the University of Missouri's Student Forum in Columbia.

Bond also has plans to return to Sikeston before the general election.

Schwada Lists Four Goals in MU Education

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—John M. Schwada, chancellor of the University of Missouri, told students the entire university community is at work charting the future of the university's Columbia campus.

"The central concern is to discover the best means for achieving four goals in university education," he said in a message to students in the "M Book," handbook distributed to students.

He listed these goals: "We must discover ways to insure that students at the university find harmony between their education and their concerns as citizens and human beings.

"We must decide what basic tools of scholarship should be possessed by every graduate.

"We must find new ways to enhance the understanding and skills of graduates in the specialties for which they underwent training.

"We must make renewed effort to find the challenges in every field of study that will provide students with a real sense of the vitality of learning."

He said the university could not be all things to all people, but it can dedicate itself to the accomplishment of these four objectives.

6 States Gain, 10 to Lose House Seats

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shifts of population over the past 10 years will result in six states gaining seats in the House of Representatives and 10 losing seats.

A preliminary census count released Tuesday showed the nation's population at between 204 million and 205 million, and indicated California, the largest state, will gain five seats in the House.

Florida, now the ninth largest in population, will gain three seats.

Arizona, Colorado, Connecticut and Texas will get one additional House seat each because of rising population.

The House delegation from New York, displaced by California as the most populous state, will drop from 41 to 39 members. Pennsylvania also will lose two House seats.

Losing one seat each when the 93rd Congress is elected in 1972 will be Alabama, Iowa, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

The congressional representation statistics were computed by a House subcommittee headed by Rep. Charles H. Wilson, DCalif.

Voters Take One School off, Leave Another in Fiscal Bind

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Voters got one St. Louis-area school district off the financial hot spot Tuesday, but another had to pin its hopes on another election and a suit challenging the validity of the Missouri Constitution's two-thirds requirement for some school levies.

The East St. Louis and Collinsville school districts in Illinois were in the throes of teacher-school board contract disputes.

In a sixth try, the Kirkwood, Mo., School District won approval of a school tax levy, assuring the opening of classes scheduled for 9,500 students on Sept. 8.

The 25,000-student Hazelwood School District, however, lost a third attempt to raise its school tax 32 cents to $5.54 per $100 assessed valuation. A $3.2 million bond issue also failed.

The Hazelwood board immediately scheduled another election for Sept. 22 and ordered its attorney to file suit challenging the constitutional provision.

Missouri school boards can levy up to $1.25 per $100 valuation without voter approval and only a simple majority is required for levies up to $3.75. Beyond that figure, two-thirds is required.

If a tax levy proposal fails, the district does not revert to the pre-election levy, but to $1.25. Hazelwood school officials said failure of the proposal would mean closing schools about mid-October when revenue from the $2.25 levy would be exhausted.

Three other St. Louis County school districts and two in neighboring St. Charles face problems. They are awaiting the outcome of elections set for Sept. 8 in the Riverview Gardens district, Sept. 10 in the Ferguson-Florissant district and Sept. 13 in the Ritenour School District, all in St. Louis County.

The Wentzville and St. Charles districts in neighboring St. Charles County also have pending tax elections.

More than 30,000 youngsters in the East St. Louis and Collinsville school district of the Illinois portion of the St. Louis metropolitan area are on extended vacation because of teacher contract disputes.

Schools in the 22,000-student East St. Louis district and the 8,500-student Collinsville district were scheduled to open Tuesday, but it was thought classes would not begin at least until next week.

Massachusetts, in 1851, became the first state to provide for judicial approval of child adoptions, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Dear Editor:

I would like to urge the readers of your paper to write their legislative representatives and request that present abuses of the public welfare system be corrected. I believe strongly in helping those who are truly needy and ending the oppression of minority groups in this country. Therefore I do not intend this letter as a general indictment of public assistance or compassion for the poor. I also do not mean to imply that local welfare offices are doing more than following guidelines issued from Washington.

For years I viewed with suspicion the many jokes and stories about abuse of tax money for welfare which I thought to be rationalizations for a lack of sympathetic understanding. I have recently been unable to ignore first hand information which would undoubtedly stun the average working family in this area if it was made public. I see funds sacrificing and struggling to earn a living for their families, making do without babysitters for an evening out, paying exorbitant amounts for health insurance, and eating both ends of the chicken as they attempt to find a place in the budget for dental work, payment of taxes, and educational costs.

On the other hand I see the example of those who are receiving more money than the teacher who teaches their children, more money than the worker in the welfare office and more money than the average wage earner in my county earns. In addition to this income one must speculate on the further value of commodities, food stamps, reduced school lunches, medicaid and subsidized tuition. I might add that also in too many instances above mentioned unwillingly contribute their share to growing handout and are forced to pass it on with higher prices.

I wonder if the majority of working people realize what is happening, and if so, why nothing is done. I wonder if indeed there is a mad hatter in Washington after all. Perhaps no one there has bothered to find out what working people here earn. Write your congressman and hold him accountable for his vote.

TV Set, Radio — Taken from Home

FAIRDEALING — A burglary in the home of Nels Martin Kiefer near here in Ripley county, last night between 7:30 and 9 a.m., netted the theft of household articles.

Taken were a color television and console set, a small radio, slide projector, and two used truck tires.

Entrance was gained by prying loose a screen from a bathroom window.

The family reported the breakin to the highway patrol at 10:25 p.m. last night when they returned home.

Reward in Fires Rises To $15,000

CAPE GIRARDEAU — A reward of $1,000 offered by the city for information leading to arrest and conviction of those guilty of arson in two fires here 10 days ago has now grown to $5,000.

City officials said they could not disclose the source of the additional sum.

City Manager W. G. Lawley said, however, others wishing to contribute to the fund could do so by contacting him. He said names would be held in confidence and the money would be placed in an escrow account.

The fires, Aug. 21, destroyed the mill of the M. R. Leming Lumber Co. at an estimated loss of $200,000 and five trucks, a highlift and a dragline of Cape Sanitation Co., the city's contract garbage hauler.

President of the lumber firm is Howard C. Tooke, Cape Girardeau mayor. The sanitation firm has a sanitary landfill in South Cape Girardeau, center of controversy over public housing which has been defeated at the polls three times by residents.

Science in Your Life

By Bob Jones

Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station -- UMC

In what may be one of the most intriguing projects that you have read about in a long time, Columbia University scientists have opened a mile-long pipeline n the Virgin Islands to bring ishore nutrientrich, cold, deep-ocean water. With this, they plan to create a sea water "garden" of microscopic plant life.

Shellfish, crustaceans, and food fish will feed on the Phytoplankton which thrives on the nutrient-rich water. The deep, cold water is pumped into closed ponds on shore. Its temperature is about 41 degrees F. while the surface water ranges from 75-84 degrees F.

Later, the cold water will be used to produce fresh water through condensation, and to generate electricity with low pressure steam from the contrasting water temperatures. It is estimated that the power produced will be sufficient to drive the pumps that bring the water up.

Armond Stammer of St. Louis asks, "How did it happen that one day farmers were going to have a bumper corn crop and the next day we were in the midst of a southern corn leaf blight crisis? Wasn't anyone able to anticipate it?"

A number of scientists including Dr. M. S. Zuber of the University of Missouri had anticipated this problem, and he had already sent 31 different strains of potentially blight-resistant corn to various fields for testing, when the blight hit this year.

Two factors made the blight a sudden and almost instant problem. The hot, humid weather which began in the middle of August made conditions almost perfect for the blight to grow and spread. And, the new strain of blight can multiply more than five times as rapidly as the old strain. This allows for an instant build up and contributes to the almost surprise effect of its infestation.

This new blight gives the same first symptoms as the old one, says Dr. Zuber, "But it is much more virulent and damaging in the advanced stages."

The first space atomic battery is now in its tenth year in orbit. The grapefruit-size battery, more formally known as a radioisotope thermoelectric generator, was launched in 1961, from Cape Kennedy on a navigational satellite. The generator has already operated four years beyond its five-year design life.

Developed by the Atomic Energy Commission, the generator supplements the power from solar cells on the Navy's oldest navigational satellite. The drum-shaped satellite, first to carry a nuclear power supply, transmits signals regularly but is no longer in operational use. It contributed to a better understanding of the shape of the earth, and was a forerunner of the Navy satellite navigation system now used by the fleet and by scientific and commercial ships.

Pig producers frequently lose money by expecting baby pigs when none are on the way. A new method of diagnosing pregnancy in swine has been developed by UMC reseacher E. C. Mather and colleagues. Mather tested small bit of skin from the sow's vagina and combined results with other information to determine if the sow was pregnant.

In a University research herd where breeding dates were known and samples could be obtained at predetermined times, an accuracy of 95 per cent was achieved on pregnancy tests. Sows which test negative can be re-bred, treated by a veterinarian, or sent to slaughter.

Astronauts aren't the only living things to make the round trip to the moon and back, and it all goes to show that we face some mighty tough competition from bacteria.

Microbiologists thought that they had successfully destroyed all microorganisms aboard the Survey III moon probe before it was launched. Then, it traveled three days in a space vacuum and rested 950 days on the hostile lunar surface where temperatures ranged from 270 degrees below to 210 degrees above zero F.

When the camera was returned to earth by Apollo 12 astronauts, Captain Frederick J. Mitchell placed a bit of insulation from the camera in a nutrient solution. On the fifth day of the test, the incubation tube was filled with Streptococcus Mitis, the rapidly developing offspring of the microorganism that had made the complete round trip from earth to moon and back and survived.

Street Department Strike at Bluff

POPLAR BLUFF — A tentative agreement on wages was reached by city officials and members of the city street department in a meeting Wednesday.

City Manager David Pence said that wage increases ranging from 51 cents to 69 cents an hour over a three-year period were offered the 23 members of the street department. Seventeen of the men are members of the Operating Engineers union.

Al Bauer, a business representative of local 2 of the union, with offices in St. Louis, said this morning that details of the agreement still had to be worked out but that the men appeared satisfied with the settlement.

The street department union members agreed to cease picket duty, although they will not return to work until an agreement is reached with the City Light and Water employes, who remain on strike.

A total of 70 members of the union have been on strike since Aug. 4 in protest to what they call "unfair negotiating" by the city.

The striking city employes are receiving commodity food from the county and Bauer acknowledged the men are receiving the "standard strike benefits" from the union. He declined to say what these benefits are.

John Thilman, union steward in the electrical department, appeared on the picket line Wednesday afternoon carrying a revolver in a belt hoster. Thilman walked back and forth in front of the Cedar street entrance to Utility Manager Cecil R. "Cobb" Johnson's office.

Thilman, in response to a reporter's question said he carried the gun briefly "to show the public how silly it looks." He said that supervisory personnel have "been carrying guns under their clothes," during the strike.

Johnson said that he and other supervisors "had to go out in the night to repair vandalism by unidentified hostile persons. If the union wants to take credit for this vandalism then we'll admit to carrying pistols."

Johnson continued: "There have been anonymous threats made, crank calls have been received, and the situation is deplorable."

Some union members have complained about being "tailed" by auxiliary Police and Civil defense members. They also have said that their homes have been "staked out" by the police officials.

The latest case of vandalism was discovered Tuesday. A water line exposed by erosion on 16th Street had been smashed open, apparently with a large rock, Johnson said. He said the line was repaired temporarily.

Picket lines continued at City Hall, City Light and Water offices, Municipal Airport and Santiary Land Fill locations.

Herman Jones, business agent for Local 2 of the Operating Engineers, was to be in the city this afternoon for possible resumption of negotiations between the city and the utility departments.

New Jail Plans To County Court

JACKSON — Rough plans for the construction of a new jail to house 71 prisoners were presented to Cape County Court this morning by Architect Fred E. Dormeyer and Sheriff Ivan E. McLain.

No action was taken on the plans by the court, but it was determined that it would be possible to put a tax levy on the ballot for November to finance construction if the court acts soon.

However, the tax could not be collected yet this year and unless temporary financing were used, funds would not be availabe for construction until late 1971.

At the same time, Prosecuting Attorney A. J. Seier told the court this morning that the present jail situation is critical and some solution must be found to the immediate problem of overcrowding right away.

Dormeyer estimated cost of phase one, the new jail, at $120,000 to $130,000 plus land and site preparation. Cost of the administrative wing, he said, would be about $90,000 plus demolition of the present jail building.

Commenting on the present situation, Seier also said it has reached a point where people are being released who should be in jail, simply to make room for persons whose cases are considered more serious.

The sheriff said after the escape attempt by two Cape County prisoners from the Bollinger County Jail, all six of those prisoners were returned here. He said prisoners are sleeping on the floors.

Corner on Questions

By Pastor Don Wilson
(Bethel Baptist Church, Dearborn Heights, Michigan)

QUESTION: IS IT POSSIBLE TO OVER - EMPHASIZE THE BIBLE- BELIEVING CHURCH?

ANSWER: While preachers can preach without an established church, it is improbable that baptism and communion can be properly administered. Furthermore, because they need sustenance, prayer, counsel, leadership, protection, and instruction, God would not have His sheep without a shepherd. While churchless communities are unheard of, Christless churches vastly outnumber Bible- believing churches. Re- emphasis upon the Christ instead of the church is therefore necessary. Overemphasis on anything often results disasterously.

Modern apathy provokes godly effort to awaken responsibility to God in the local church ministry and rightly so; however, pursuance of this goal has historically resulted in more loyality to the church than to Christ. While loyality to Christ produces faithfulness to the Bible- believing church, the reverse position is unreliable. Loyality should be to Christ because the next pastor could be satanic. Scripture teaches: "The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?"

Christian giving should be an act of worship. Abraham paid tithes to Melchizedek, and Christ is "a priest forever after the order of Melchizedek." Christians likewise should give to a person rather than to a system. While true churches should receive tithes, God's people are responsible to subordinate their leaders to their Lord. Christians are too often robbed of eternal reward because mere church - loyality prompts support of temporal causes; however, Christ- loyality builds responsibility in Christians toward the overall ministry of Christ of which a major part is the Bible- believing Church.

The Bible teaches: "Christ IN you, the hope of glory." Not the church in you, but Christ in you gives the only hope of Heaven. Jesus Himself said: "I am the way, the truth, and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by Me." Again, the infallible Word says: "The blood of Jesus Christ God's Son Cleanseth us from all sin." Christ is All!

Senate Passes Missouri Water Project Bill

WASHINGTON —The Senate has passed the fiscal 1971 public works appropriations bill, which includes $114,366,000 for flood control and other water projects for Missouri, Senators Stuart Symington (D-Mo.) and Thomas F. Eagleton (D-Mo.) announced today.

The bill now goes to a House-Senate conference, where differences in the bills passed by the two Houses will be worked out. The House bill, passed earlier, contains $102,961,000 for Missouri projects.

Senators Symington and Eagleton said they were hopeful the larger amount of money for Missouri in the senate bill would prevail in the conference.

Meany Declares Table Grape Boycott Ended

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An official end to he nationwide boycott of California table grapes has been declared by AFL- CIO President George Meany.

He told the California Labor Federation's state convention Monday that 90 per cent of the state's grape growers have signed union contracts and the boycott was regarded in union circles as a great success.

The same tactic might be used in other disputes, he declared.

Booklet Explains Home Rule Proposal

CLAYTON — A 19- page booklet explaining a proposed amendment to the Missouri Constitution which would grant full home rule to St. Louis county has been published by the Bipartisan Committee for Home Rule.

The amendment will appear as Proposition No. 2 on the November 3 general election ballot. Simple majority approval throughout the state is required for passage.

"Passage of Proposition No. 2 would eliminate the need for the state legislature to burden itself with problems that apply only to St. Louis county," the booklet reports. "Legislators would be freed to devote more time to solving statewide problems."

Proposition No. 2 often is referred to as "the home rule amendment" because it would allow citizens of a charter county to determine what services shall be provided by the various governments operating in their county. Presently, St. Louis County is Missouri's only charter county.

"The rapid growth of St. Louis County has created a demand for expanded government services and facilities. The county's population has increased from 406,349 in 1950 to nearly 1 million in 1970," the booklet states.

St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos recently noted that the growth of St. Louis County has brought problems that were unheard of 20 years ago.

"By approving Proposition No. 2, the citizens of of Missouri will be granting the voters of the state's largest county the opportunity to solve their own problems by deciding how they can best be served by their governments," the Supervisor said.

"Officials of both municipalities and the county government have agreed that the best means of providing local services is a close partnership among municipal and county officials, with each providing those services for which it is best suited. Presently, such a countywide partnership can exist only if individual contracts are negotiated between the county government and all 95 municipalities or if special action is taken by the State Legislature," according to the home rule booklet.

James R. James, Jr., general chairman of the Bipartisan Committee for Home Rule, explains that approval of Proposition No. 2 "would enable St. Louis County citizens to use their voting power in subsequent elections to strengthen the county - municipal partnership, thereby, improving the efficiency of local government."

Any realignment of government services under the provisions of Proposition No. 2 would necessitate amending the St. Louis County Charter. An amendment to the county charter requires a clear ballot definition of the proposed change, a ballot description of how the proposed change would be financed, and simple majority approval of St. Louis County voters.

Missouri Schools Pupil Peak Seen

JEFFERSON CITY — Approximately 1,082,000 pupils are expected to be enrolled in about 680 public school districts of Missouri when classes resume across the state according to State Commissioner of Education Hubert Wheeler.

"If our statistical projections are correct, 1970-71 might be the peak year for enrollment in Missouri," he added. Total enrollment in the state's public schools last year was 1,077,288.

Wheeler noted public school enrollments in Missouri have climbed each year since 1944-45 when the state total was only 620,844.

Other projections from the State Department of Education indicate 49,000 certified personnel will be in the schools this year, with about 46,000 of that number serving as classroom teachers. The rest are superintendents. assistant superintendents, principals and supervisors.

Records also reveal some 55,500 students were graduated from public high schools in the state last year; about 3,600 school buildings were in use; and approximately 7,300 buses and other vehicles were used to transport students to and from school.

The Prayer
from
The Upper Room

What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with Thy God? (Micah 6:8)

PRAYER: Our Father, when we survey Thy wondrous works and consider Thy great gift of Thy Son, our unworthiness overwhelms us. But in the assurance that we are loved and cared for by Thee, help us to rise in gratitude and serve Thee in ways that have meaning in Thy kingdom. Amen.

Shoplifting Does Require Concealment

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Tricky Dicky was a very matter- of -fact individual. Needing a new pair of shoes, he ventured into Hoople's Department Store and replaced his old pair with snappy new shoes that he removed from one of the open racks.

Then, nonchalantly, he strolled casually out of the store without paying for them. Before his new shoes could carry him more than a block away, however, Dicky was arrested on charges of shoplifting.

"We caught him red -footed," the store detectives told the judge. "When we collared him, he hadn't even bothered to remove the price tag from the shoes."

"I'm no shoplifter," was Dicky's answer. "The shoplifting law specifically requires that the merchandise taken must have been concealed. The fact is, I concealed nothing. When I walked out of the store, the shoes were in plain view of everybody including, obviously, the store detectives. Consequently, I'm not guilty as charged."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you convict Tricky Dicky of shoplifting?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that concealment does not always mean to hide something. As in this case, it may mean performing an act that makes it difficult to discover that merchandise has been taken without payment. And, by wearing the shoes out of the store, concluded the judge, Dicky obviously attempted to make discovery difficult by giving the impression that he was departing in his own shoes.

Under Twenty

Win a WEBSTER'S NEW WORLD DICTIONARY if you're under twenty. Ask a question of an outstanding personality that will be of interest to ALL "Under Twenties." Write QUESTION-AIRS, c/o The Daily Standard.

Dear Question-Air:

I would like to know what training one must have to become an auctioneer? I am thirteen years old and talk quite fast, for which my friends are always kidding me. I would like to put my ability to work and become an auctioneer. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Mildred Livanos
Plymouth, Mass.

(This week's award of a WEBSTER'S NEW WORLD DICTIONARY is being sent to Mildred Livanos as well as the original answer from William J. Fischer of William J. Fischer, Inc., New York, N.Y.)

Dear Mildred:

In reply to your request for some information on "How to become an auctioneer":

The only auctioneers I know of that must talk fast are tobacco and horse auctioneers. My line is Household Effects and Works of Art.

My advice to you would be to work in an Auction Gallery for a few years to become familiar with the names of articles and the value and type of items you intend to sell.

The chances of getting a position as an auctioneer are very slim. At least ninety percent of the auctioneers are in business for themselves. In order to go into business you would need a fairly good knowledge of all periods of furniture, porcelains and paintings and as to whether they are copies or originals.

If this would be of any help to you, I worked for an auction gallery from 1917 to 1926 when I opened my own gallery.

I do not think you could find a more fascinating field to work in. If you are interested in selling commercial and industrial merchandise, the people who engage you to conduct a sale would give you all the information you would need regarding cataloguing and value of the different items.

I hope this is of some help to you and lots of luck when you decide on your future vocation.

Sincerely,
William J. Fischer

is this the moment for your 2nd Début?
It is, if you see other women whispering behind your back and you just know they're discussing your age. It is, if you are looking even a tiny bit older than your husband. It is, if your husband no longer brings you flowers as frequently as he used to. Then, this IS the moment for you to discover the wonders that 2nd Debut is capable of performing on skin of most any age past 30.
CEF is a principal active ingredient of 2nd Debut. CEF is the synthetic counterpart of a natural material present in normal human skin. In nature, until age 30 or thereabouts, this CEF is present in sufficient strength to keep the skin's water-moisture level up, to prevent age lines from appearing prematurely. CEF, as employed in 2nd Debut is made available in two specially prepared strengths for twice daily topical application to facial skin of age 30 or older. 2nd Debut (with CEF 600) contains enough concentration of CEF for the woman whose age is hovering around 40. Its price is $3 for 4 ounces. 2nd Debut with CEF 1200, double potency, is especially prepared for the skin of age 50, or older. However 2nd Debut (with CEF 1200) is used with great success and satisfaction by many younger grand dames who enjoy indulging their personal impatience, or when their time is of the essence. The price is $5 for 4 ounces. Regardless of circumstances, however, when the objective is a smoother, less linefull, fresher, more youthful-appearing facial skin, 2nd Debut is now a favorite most everywhere.
Other 2nd Debut preparations
2nd Debut Liquid Cleanser
For the clearest skin ever. 2 ozs. $3.
2nd Debut Liquid Makeup
High covering power matte finish. Moisturizes with CEF 600. 6 shades, each $3.
2nd Debut Pressed Powder

VIRGIL WALLS OWINGS

MOREHOUSE — Virgil Walls Owings' name was incorrectly reported to The Daily Standard Tuesday as Virgil Wallace Owens. He died Monday.

Other information erroneously reported included surviving children. It should have been Mrs. John D. Smith of Paxton, Ill., and Mrs. Dan Palen of Springfield. There are 26 surviving grandchildren, not 25. Lombard, Ill., was incorrectly reported as Lonbard. The name Ferguson was mispelled as Furguson.

Pemiscot Jury Asks 3 Indictments

CARUTHERSVILLE — Pemiscot County Grand Jury may return three indictments Tuesday afternoon in connection with the jury's three - week- old investigatin of alleged irregularities in the Aug. 4 primary election.

Prosecuting Attorney Arthur T. Stephenson told The Missourian this morning the jury has requested him to prepare three indictments.

The nature of the indictments are now unknown, Mr. Stephenson said. He added the jurors have indicated they will be ready to return three indictments Tuesday afternoon.

The grand jury has been meeting behind closed doors since Aug. 11.

Meanwhile, attorneys for five Pemiscot County residents contesting election results have filed amotion in Circuit Court seeking to disquality fregular Circuit Judge Wm. Ragland in the election contest hearing scheduled for Sept. 15.

The motion "is not a reflection on Judge Ragland," said James Ford and WEndell Crow, Kennett attorneys representing the five election losers.

"However, the fact that he was on the ballot in the election which our clients are contesting, and since, as a citizen, he would have voted in the primary, we feel the disqualification motion is in order," the attorneys state.

Judge Ragland, who has been on vacation, is scheduled to rule on the motion Tuesday. The motion asks that the judge, who called the special grand jury session, request the Missouri Supreme Court to appoint a new judge to hear the case.

Also pending is a motion filed by Mr. Ford and Mr. Crow requesting the court to cite 14 Pemiscot County residents who failed to appear in the county clerk's office last Tuesday to give depositions in one of the election contest suits.

McGovern Says Senate Vote Puts Full War Load on Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate vote against the end-thewar amendment" was the final step in turning over complete responsibility for the Indochina war to President Nixon, contends George McGovern.

"His unchecked and unfettered role now as the chief executive makes him responsible alone now for developments in the future," the senator said in an interview. "If things come out well, he'll be a hero. If things come out as I think they will—which is very poorly—then he's in trouble."

McGovern, leader of the forces that lost 55-39 on the Hatfield-McGovern amendment requiring withdrawal of all U.S. troops from Vietnam by the end of 1971, was relaxed and unruffled as he sat in his office a few hours after the vote Tuesday and talked about its meaning.

"I think it is an abdication of our constitutional responsibilities to place the whole burden on the President," said the South Dakota Democrat.

"Today, all during this debate, the White House message was 'leave it to the President. He's getting us out, he's in charge, don't try to influence judgments or provide any guidelines at all—give him a free hand.' And the Senate voted to do that today."

The President, McGovern said, made a mistake in insisting on keeping the sole possession of the decision when to end the war.

"He has whatever ego satisfaction comes from demonstrating that he's running the show, that he's running the war," the senator said.

"But he has the great political hazard of making a decision that at best is going to be controversial and unpopular. There's no way to back out of this war now and look graceful about it. You can't settle a war that we're going to settle short of victory without setting off a lot of cries of anguish in the country."

The amendment was born in McGovern's office in late April —just before the incursion in Cambodia. Four versions of it came to the Senate—all of them bearing the imprint and zeal of the senator from South Dakota.

Is he now discouraged?

"Temporarily," McGovern said. "I'll recover by tomorrow. I am baffled as to why so many senators who are willing to admit the whole war is a mistake are so reluctant to terminate it. That, I think, is a paradox that is discouraging."

There will be no more efforts this year on McGovern's part to stop the war by legislative action

"I'm going to continue to speak out against the war," he said, "but we've made a major legislative test now and I don't see any point in running that exercise again this year. After the elections this fall, I think we ought to try again—next year—with some kind of vehicle .... Now it seems to me the next step is to test the issue out on the political hustings this fall and then we'll see what we can do with a different Congress next year."

Dexter Water Vote Studied

DEXTER — Dexter's City Council was expected to meet Monday night of this week and give "serious consideration" to the re - submission of the water system improvement bond issue in the near future.

There was every indication early Monday that the water proposal would be the main item of business when the board met in special session Monday night. Mayor Willis Conner called the special meeting, with the water bonds as one of the proposals.

Dexter voters narrowly defeated the water bonds here several months ago, but the water situation in Dexter has grown more critical since that time and several city officials described the situation as "urgent."

The situation was brought dramatically to light here last week during the fire at the Ringer Hardware Company. There was inadequate water pressure, and yet the city was giving the firemen "all the water available," according to O. D. Hill, water commissioner.

There have been numerous other instances during the past few months where the lack of water, and inadequate water pressure, has shown up, city officials said.

Any approval made Monday night of this week would be informal, and would merely instruct City Attorney Paul McGhee to proceed with plans for calling the special election. Legal work with the bonding firms would take time, it was pointed out.

Col. Charles L. Blanton, Jr.
EDITOR
THE DAILY STANDARD
~~Sikeston, Missouri~~

Dear Mr. Blanton:

A number of residents of our City of Sikeston are elated that the census recount of residents in Sikeston has indicated an increase over the preliminary official census, although it has been noted that radically different Guide Line Methods were used in the two counts, as well as their being on different dates.

We too were anxious for the city to show growth, and we are sure that the enumerators who took the original census were too. However, we have before us ten articles which have appeared in THE DAILY STANDARD pertaining to the census which aren't exactly complimentary. We list a few quotations below.

Mr. Daniel L. Suggs states that the 1954 population was shown as 18,944 on a map prepared by a firm of consulting engineers, and says "The New Census Figure Is An Insult To Sikeston." Mr. O. D. Clayton says "I Think It Is Wrong. I Don't Think It Can Be Conceivably Right." Mr. Clem Beal states that the Chamber of Commerce had enough calls from persons not counted that "It Is Imperative That We Count AGain." We believe a recheck indicates that these residents were absent from he city at that time, but were counted by information obtained from other sources. Mr. Beal also states that the results of the recount are "More Realistic" than the official census. Frankly, if we had been enumerators, we would have been disturbed by these statements reflecting on the credibility of the U.S. Census, and their work.

We are equally elated now that the recount has been completed, that Mr. Beal, chairman of that committee, and Mr. O. D. Clayton, Manager of The Chamber of Commerce, can devote their time, and efforts to attract new industries to our growing city, rather than issuing statements casting reflections on the U.S. Census enumerators.

Actually, it is questionable that the showing of a large growth in population has that much effect on obtaining new industry, as some officials have been quoting a much larger population for a number of years, and that hasn't resulted in any industry being stampeded into locating here.

We too were disappointed in the indicated growth, but will not criticize the enumerators for using the Official Guide Lines as set forth by the Bureau of Census. Now that a recount has been made, using a different method of counting residents, and that recount undeniably is a verification of the original count, we believe that Mr. Suggs, Mr. O. D. Clayton, and Mr. Clem Beal owe the enumerators an apology for what must be interpreted as derogatory reflections on the original count.

We sincerely believe that any industry considering a location would be much more impressed that our City of Sikeston is a growing city as evidenced by the original census, and that it has:

1. Room For Growth
2. Is Not Hampered By A Population Explosion
3. Has Excellent Educational Facilities.
4. Has Adequate Churches For Worship.
5. Is progressing In It's Recreational Facilities.
6. Is Free From Excessive Air And Water Pollution.

and innumerable assets other than a mere increase in population.

Finally, in regards to the increase in state gas tax funds, if we refer to a recent article in the good paper. The Daily Standard, showing that Sikeston and other Cities were entitled to many more gas tax dollars based on the present population, than there were monies in the fund to refund this tax to those cities, then possibly, and hopefully we won't be seriously injured in that respect. We, wishing to be accurate, will not attempt to quote that amount, but suggest that possibly all efforts should be directed to obtaining the amount the present population entitles Sikeston to receive.

We do not intend this to be critical of any individual, but do believe that enough has been said in the matter of the census, and hope that the next announcement will be that Sikeston has secured the much referred to new industry.

We too give a vote of thanks to the volunteers who gave their time and efforts to the recount. We know that it was a tremendous task.

Although the military used to be Hawaii's chief source of income, tourism gradually is moving into first place, followed by sugarcane and pineapple. By the year 1978 the state expects 3,000,000 tourists annually — a number more than four times greater than its current permanent population of 700,000.

College Study Says Radicals Losing Favor

NEW YORK (AP) — American college students are largely moderate and the radical student movement is disintegrating, torn by factionalism and frustration, according to a report of the League for Industrial Democracy.

The report, including a survey of 50 campuses conducted by the league's Youth Project on Democratic Change, said the left-wing oriented student movement had deteriorated to a diversity of groups and goals "with no shared sense of direction and very often with profound and even bitter internal differences."

The league is a social reform movement founded in 1905 by Upton Sinclair, Clarence Darrow and Jack London. It is headed now by Michael Harrington, the Socialist leader, and concerns itself with political, economic and social issues.

In gauging student response to public figures, the most favored were Rep. Allard K. Lowenstein, D-N.Y., Vietnam moratorium leader Sam Brown and Michael Harrington. Black Panther leader Huey Newton and radical theorists Tom Hayden received favorable but "lukewarm" responses, the league reported.

The least favorable response was to Gus Hall, leader of the U.S. Communist party.

Despite expressions of general dissatisfaction with their country, most students questioned ranked the United States as their second most favored homeland, behind Sweden and ahead of Israel, Canada and England. Only 7.5 per cent said they would prefer to live in a Communist country.

Mini-Computer Tips Possible Heart Trouble

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — Three scientists have created a computer about the size of a deck of cards that they say may save thousands of lives by warning heart-care patients of possible trouble.

The device, called VIDA—Ventricular Impulse Detector and Alarm—gives off a loud beep when a patient's heart produces "ectopic" beats, a sure sign of usually fatal heart fibrillation that causes the heart to stop pumping.

Once the alarm sounds, patients have about three days to seek medical attention, the inventors say.

Creators of the shirt-pocket computer are Dr. John W. Gofman of San Francisco, and two California electronics specialists, Robert L. Chapman of Danville and Richard D. Lawhorn of Castro Valley, who have set up offices in this San Francisco-Oakland suburb.

"It's really tragic to realize that many people die from temporary heart fibrillations," Chapman said in an interview.

He said the device is attached by two electrodes to the chest. A special circuit protector prevents possible false alarms.

A prototype model has been developed, and a dozen more are being built for testing before marketing, possibly in 1971, the men say.

The idea for the device was born several years ago when Dr. Gofman suggested it to Chapman, who evolved the basic electronic concept.

They patented VIDA in 1964. The normal number of a patient's heart beats is set in the computer beforehand, and as long as the heart functions normally no sound is made.

Four Courses To Be Offered

PORTAGEVILLE — The University of Missouri in Columbia proposes to offer these credit courses during the fall semester:

Music for the Elementary Teacher; Foundations of Western Civilization; English Composition I; and Teaching Reading for the Elementary Teacher.

Persons interested may contact their extension centers or Mrs. Kathryn Kinnard, Area Continuing Education Programmer at the University of Missouri Delta Center in Portageville, phone 379-5431.

Attendance Mark

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — W. C. Askew, secretary of the Missouri State Fair, said today the 1970 fair which closed a nine- day stand Sunday set a new attendance record — 352,203. The previous high attendance was 336,760 in 1969.

Askew credited ideal weather and the large variety of attractions for the increase.

"The new record indicates to me that the Missouri State Fair is a popular attraction and fills the need for family entertainment not available anywhere else," he said.

Things I desperately need to discover this week — or next week — or the week after —

1. a breakfast that would taste like chili or hamburgers so I could get my two fellas off in the morning with something in their stomach.

2. how to entice this new puppy to squat on the papers I put down, instead of shredding them to pieces with her teeth.

3. how to get a fella's wardrobe to last longer than 3 months, (course, I guess I could put a brick on his head but the pressure might give him headaches.

4. an easy way to clean out closets and drawers.

5. what to do with the junk I cleanout of the closets and drawers.

6. an easy way to get the boys out of bed on school days and an easy way to keep them in the bed on week ends.

7. a sugar daddy — I just got my phone bill and you wouldn't believe what it cost to call Charleston, I could talk to New York cheaper.

8. a tv dinner that didn't taste like a tv dinner.

9. what the hemlines are going to do this year — too short is already looking seedy but too long I'm not quite ready for either — think I'll just go naked, probably all I can afford to do with this years clothes cost anyway.

Burlison Accused Of Misuse of Mailing Privlege

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Gary Rust, Republican opponent of Rep. Bill D. Burlison of Missouri's 10th Congressional District, has charged the latter with misusing his mailing privileges.

Rust accused Burlison of "flagrant misuse" of the franking privilege by mailing "one piece of literature after another into the district at the expense of taxpayers."

"It is beyond question that the present congressman is misusing this privilege for purely political purposes," Rust declared.

"If he wants a piece of his political literature to go into every home in the district every other week, let him put out the $12,000, it would cost for each mailing like all other candidates have to do."

Rust also accused his Democratic opponent of voting for the congressional pay increase. He noted Burlison "claims that he is opposed to the increase." But, he continued, "he cast a vote that made it possible for the bill to raise many top federal salaries."

He did so, Rust continued, by voting for a 10- day adjournment that allowed the bill to become effective, while opposing congressmen voted against the adjournment.

Rust pledged to introduce a bill to lower congressional salaries to $30,000 annually until the budget is balanced and inflation controlled.

Conservation Cropping Needs Time to Thrive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservation cropping systems need to be continued through years to retain their beneficial effects on soil, government scientists report.

After five years of continuous cropping to forage or grain sorghum, soil scientists found that experimental plots lost much of the residual benefits from early conserving methods.

Soil water intake was increased 100 per cent and soil loss was reduced 50 per cent by a fescue- fescue- grain sorghum cropping system over a 14- year span. Rotating sweetclover and grain sorghum also increased intake about 25 per cent and cut soil loss 20 per cent.

Dr. John E. Adams of the Agriculture Department's research service reports that "most of the effects of previous crops on water intake and soil loss were not significant after five years of continuous sorghum" but that the residual benefits of sweet- clover plantings continued to increase sorghum yield significantly after the plots were put in sorghum alone for five years.

Organic content of the soil was increased by several cropping systems, Dr. Adams, found, but he noted a decrease under continuous sorghum.

The scientists took soil cores from each crop system at the beginning of the 14th growing season and again after five years of continuous cropping. He obtained data on water intake, drainage, soil loss and suspended sediment after saturating and draining the cores and subjecting them to two inches of artificial rainfall at the rate of four inches an hour from a height of 39 inches.

J.J. to Meet Real Politicians

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One of the unexpected side results of Julie Sommars' status as a star of a television series has been an opportunity to meet statesmen and-or politicians.

Miss Sommars, given a choice, undoubtedly would have preferred opportunities to meet producers of motion pictures and-or Broadway plays. She has been industriously learning the business of acting in Hollywood, school and summer stock.

Julie plays one-half of the title of "The Governor and J.J.," a CBS situation comedy about the widower head of an unidentified state that resembles California and his post-college-age daughter. In its initial season, the series showed considerable humor, warmth and family feeling. Despite disappointing ratings, it won the network's nod for a second year.

Somebody decided to invite some real governors to appear on the show, on the theory that no matter how minimal their acting ability, the chief executives would (1) attract loyal constituents to the show and (2) provide the show's press agents with some promotable angles.

"This season our governor—Dan Dailey—is going to run for re-election," Julie reported, refusing to reveal whether he wins or loses.

After all the drama school study, stock and some motion picture experience, Julie enjoys the discipline of acting in the series. The performers rehearse each episode as if it were a play for four days and it is filmed on the fifth before a studio audience.

"It is possible under those conditions to give a sustained performance," she said. "The other way you work in bits and pieces."

In her free time, the pretty blonde native of Nebraska likes to swim and ride horseback.

"I'd really like it better out here if there were more interesting eligible men around," she admitted. "The important words in that sentence were 'interesting' and 'eligible.'"

That is, surprisingly, a common complaint of young, attractive and successful women stars.

Spy Satellite Sent Aloft to Eye Missiles

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The hurry up launching of a secret spy satellite has underscored America's need to fill an intelligence gap on Red China's missile progress.

The new satellite, sent aloft Monday night, was headed today toward a stationary orbit some 20,000 miles above Southeast Asia, where it would be in position to monitor test launchings by both Red China and the Soviet Union.

The Air Force, which launched the spy craft, hopes it will do better than a similar satellite sent up last June.

That payload achieved a preliminary orbit of 112 to 20,736 miles above the earth. But two days later, the second stage of the Atlas-Agena rocket failed to restart and the satellite did not reach the desired hover orbit over Southeast Asia.

Photos On Display

JEFFERSON ITY — A traveling exhibit has become the newest attraction in the Missouri State Museum in the Capitol.

The exhibit, sponsored by the Missouri Council on the Arts, is on loan to the State Museum for a limited time and located in the east wing of the building.

Photography buffs particularly will be attracted by the collection of beautiful color pictures placed strategically on the display which measures 12 feet by 40 feet in length.

The display is arranged in such a manner the visitor starts viewing rural scenes in Missouri which include an array of photographs of covered bridges, farm scenes and picturesque landscapes taken throughout the state.

The section of the exhibit portraying small towns has pictures of St. Paul's Church in Ironton and the Bolduc House in Ste. Geievieve, plus pictures of the Winston Churchill Memorial in Fulton and a landscape view of Hermann. In the "large towns" section are views of Stephens College Chapel and Francis Quadrangle at the University of Missouri, both located in Columbia, and the Schuster- Wheller House in St. Joseph.

Gerald Massie, Acting Director of the Museum, an activity of the Missouri Division of Commerce and Industrial Development, said "The visitor viewing this display, and reading the descriptive captions, will certainly feel that he has taken a complete tour of Missouri.

Registration For Classes Thursday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Registration for undergraduate evening courses to be offered during the fall semester at Southeast Missouri State College will be conducted Thursday night beginning at 7 p.m., according to Lyman Evans, director of admissions at the college.

Evans said prospective students should report to the third floor of Kent Library for the enrollment process.

He said students who have not previously applied for admission can be accommodated Thursday night, providing they meet Southeast Missouri State's admission standards.

Thirty-one evening courses in eight departments are tentatively to be offered during the fall term at the college. At least 15 students who are not taking a full load during regular class hours must enroll in an evening course for it to go on as planned.

As a general rule, evening courses meet only one night a week. This fall, classes set for Monday evenings will first meet on Sept. 14. Tuesday night classes will have their first sessions next week, Wednesday night classes next week and Thursday night classes next week.

The departments which are offering undergraduate night classes are business administration and business education, earth science, women's physical education, men's physical education, social sciences, speech, education and psychology, and industrial and technical education.

Courses to be offered:

In addition to these courses, a number of graduate courses are scheduled for evening hours. Also three religion courses will be taught at the Newman Catholic Center and one will be taught at the Baptist Student Center at night.

FAITH

If we would awake to each new day and have faith that God would lead our way
The troublesome things that get in our way would straighten out and fade away.

We would breeze through our week without a care and even have time for a prayer
We will always have burdens that we must bear but they would be easier and we would be less aware
With the thought in your heart that our Lord cares
we would smile at our work, think kind thoughts all day, if we had faith that God had led our day.

KEEP OLD GLORY WAVING

We're proud of you Bruce
Now serving Uncle SAm,
Training to help protect
Freedom in our land.
It's a great honor Bruce
I would have you know,
To keep Old Glory waving
The flag we love so.

Your willingness to serve
Wins you much respect,
Your service and obedience
Learning how to protect
This precious freedor of ours
Which we all love well,
To keep Old Glory waving
Men have gone through hell.

To keep our liberty
They crawled through barbwire,
Running over dead bodies
Facing machine gun fire,
Slept night after night
In a muddy foxhole,
How they suffered and died
The worst was never told.

The greater shall serve
Our Saviour said one day,
Your service for our freedom
No man can repay,
When our great Rewarder returns
When payday rolls around,
All our service men
Will surely wear a crown.

Washington Report

by Symington

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry has just reported a farm bill to the floor of the Senate. The Senate Committee amended certain portions of H.R. 18546, the Agricultural Act of 1970, which was passed by the House of Representatives earlier this month.

The bill, which authorizes farm programs for crop years 1971, 1972 and 1973, will be debated on the floor of the Senate sometime after the Labor Day recess. It is my ardent hope that at this time further improvements can be added to the new farm bill.

In that agriculture is Missouri's number one industry, a strong farm bill is badly needed to insure progress and prosperity for our farmers. Already, in recent weeks I have received many letters from Missourians with respect to the new farm legislation. Your comments and suggestions are most helpful, and I will welcome all letters, on this and other subjects, from all interested citizens.

MISSOURI'S BROILER INDUSTRY. In our State of Missouri, gross income derived from the production of broilers amounted to nearly $12 million in 1969.

The broiler industry supports an extensive and highly developed processing sector which provides income and employment for many of our rural citizens.

What about the future? The demand for broiler meat continues to grow annually. In every year since 1946, the production of broilers has exceeded production of the previous year.

Even with the expanding productionof other livestock and meat products and meat substitutes, our people will be demanding more and more chickens. One observer suggests that another one billion broilers annually will be produced in this country by 1980 -- up from 4 billion broilers which will be produced here in 1970.

Regrettably the man who grows the chickens is not sharing in the prosperity to the extent to which he should and no one knows it better than the farmers of Missouri. That presents a challenge to us to work out arrangements whereby the man who produces the chicks obtains a better return for his labor, know- how, and investment.

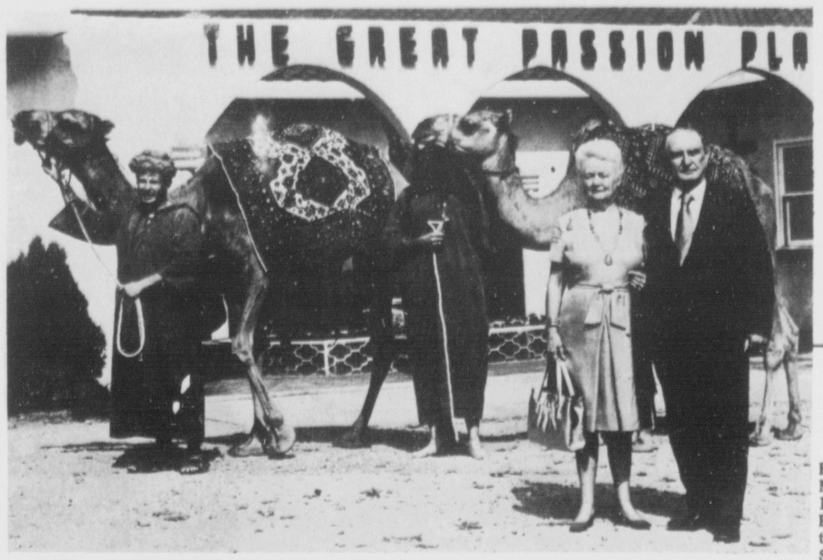
Labor Day Traffic Toll May Hit 670

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Safety Council has estimated that 570 to 670 persons will die on the nation's highways over the Labor Day weekend.

The council said Sunday that American motorists will drive 300 million miles more over the three- day holiday than they would during a normal weekend.

"Flying" Fish

The freshwater butterfly fish is only about five inches long at maturity, but it can leap out of the water for distances up to six feet and glide to a soft landing with the aid of its large pectoral fins.



ONE OF THE INTERESTING FEATURES of the Great Passion Play, now being presented in Eureka Springs, Arkansas, on Mount Oberammergau and concluding the last week in October, is the presence of interesting animals, including camels, donkeys, sheep, primitive-type dogs, doves and horses. Obediah on the left and Hezekiah on the right, portrayed in the picture, are Arabian camels which were selected three years ago by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald L. K. Smith, who are in the picture.

Milking Parlor Coming to Fair

MEMPHIS — There will be a sophisticated addition to the Livestock Show at the 114th Mid- South Fair, Sept. 25- Oct. 3, -- a milking parlor.

The Fall has spent $12,500 to build the milking parlor in the northwest corner of the Livestock barn which will be complete with huge windows for public viewing of the milking process. More than half a million persons, thousands of whom might never have seen a cow actually being milk, are expected to visit the parlor during the nine days of the Fair.

For the benefit of the knowledgeable, the milking parlor will have:

1. Four, staunchion, gate-type stalls.
2. A capacity to handle 40 to 48 cows per hour
3. A bulk milk cooling tank (vacuum type) with a capacity of 800 gallons.
4. Complete automatic cleaning system on both the milking equipment and the cooling tank.
5. Twin- vacuum, four- unit milking equipment system.

HILLINGDON, England (AP) Primary school pupils here have raised over 1000 pounds ($2,400) in the past 13 years to buy guide dogs for the blind.

The pupils of Colham Manor Primary School have raised the money by collecting milk bottle tops and aluminum foil to sell to a nearby smelting factory. The dogs cost 250 pounds ($600) each to buy and train.

Emergency Power, Extra Water Slated For Apollo 14 Flight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has decided to add an emergency power supply and some 20 pounds of drinking water to the Apollo 14 command- and - service module for its moon flight this winter.

The two changes were announced Monday as preparations continued for a launching now tentatively scheduled for Jan. 31.

An oxygen - tank ruptured and explosion on the way to the moon last April forced the Apollo 13 crew to abandon plans for a lunar landing. Failure of the fuel cells left the main part of the spacecraft without electric power and a continuing source of water.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Reunited Germany 'Bomb' Sputters

By BRUCE BIOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

There has been a good deal more early ecstasy over the Bonn-Moscow "renunciation of force" pact than the general East-West relationship—and especially the German situation—justifies.

Any easing of tensions and settling of borders is, of course, properly welcome. But the divisions within Europe are still serious, with far too much emphasis upon ideological differences to suit the circumstances of the fast-changing world of today.

The continued existence of the two Germanies cannot be brushed aside as if they were two Koreas or two Vietnams. The German separation is a far-bigger, long-range time bomb than is the Mideast or the Far East.

European analysts are saying that East and West Germany will not be drawn together until the United States and Russia have come to much closer understanding than is found today. Some argue that the "German problem" will be the last to be solved.

This may be the hardest kind of political realism. Yet it is also realistic to recognize that the German people feel themselves as one and want some positive movement soon toward tighter bonds.

To this end, the big Western powers are presently working to promote a freer flow of people and an easing of restrictions between the two Germanies.

The East German Reds want, as they always have, full recognition as a separate state. Brandt has been searching for a solution that would seem to grant, for the time being, some independent status to East Germany but not abandon the goal—still vivid in German minds—of reunification.

Though Moscow's pressure may now alter the situation, the East Germans have been incredibly stubborn. Among their demands, for instance, is one for payment to them by Bonn of 10,000 marks for every East German who has crossed the line into West Germany. It is estimated this would come to about $1 billion. West Germans regard the claim as an absurdity.

It would be much more to the point if money flowed the other way. There is a very lively trade between West and East Germany but the Reds' trade deficit at this stage is in the range of $1.1 billion.

Understandably, neither the Soviet Union nor Poland nor any East European land recalling World War II looks forward eagerly to a strong, reunited Germany. The East's wish for continuing security arrangements backed by Moscow is plausible enough. But Moscow cannot hope to keep Germany separated indefinitely. Unlike the condition in such a place as divided Korea, there is no animosity in the Germanies at the popular level. The division is wholly artificial, and the years of Red indoctrination have not made East Germans into willing Communists—except in ruling circles. To ignore basic German unity could be the world's greatest peril.

Matthews News

MATTHEWS — Mrs. Bernice Rogers of the Matthews Unit; Mrs. Dell Duncan of the Lilbourn Unit, and Mrs. Barbara Robinson of the Parma Unit of the New Madrid County R-1 School Dist. Enlarged were among the 321 home economics teachers in Missouri who attended the Annual State Conference at Tan Tar Lake of the Ozarks, August 16-19.

"Teachers Dare to Care" was the theme of the conference with emphasis on working more effectively with youth in the Future Homemakers of America organization. Dr. Allene Gross, Head of Home Economics Education, Universty of Georgia, and Miss Louisa Liddell, Associate National Advisor, Future Homemaker of America, were guest consultants.

The meeting began Sunday evening when President, Dollie Dick of East Prairie, introduced Dr. Arthur L. Mallory, President of Southwest Missouri State College, Springfield. He informed the home economics teachers of "What I expect for my daughter."

On Tuesday a panel of officers from various youth organizations discussed, "How Adults Can Help Youth To Be More Effective Leaders," in these troubled times. Most youth are definitely interested in improving our world, but too often this majority is never heard from.

Home Economics teachers are usually labeled as "workers" and much of the remaining time proved this label true -- Work sessions were quite helpful, with each teacher receiving information and printed materials which were designated to help them in the coming school year.

At the banquet, in the lovely ballroom Miss Donna Swartz, Information and Education Specialist, Division of Mental Health, gave the teachers a look at the youth drug scene and emphasized the need for teachers to be able to recognize youth drug abusers. Drugs seems to be a growing problem and educators must be aware of ways to help the troubled youth.

The business meeting was held on Wednesday morning with reports from Audrey Eberlin, Pattonville, treasurer and Genevia Moore, Springfield, secretary, Barbara Crow, president- elect from Trenton succeeded as president and the following ladies were elected to offices. President- elect, Darlen Dodson; Secretary, Bonnie Shipendecker; Treasurer, Geraldine Wyatt; Council Members, Estaline Hunsucker; Ferrell Mallory, Thelma Six, and Polly Powell.

The vacationing atmosphere was not totally lost in the work session. A box supper was served aboard the crusier, Larry Donn, and the ladies enjoyed the ski pageant presented nightly during the summer months.

Three hundred tired, but enthused home economics teachers left at noon Wednesday eager to get to the classroom knowing that "Teachers Dare to Care."

Steam Engine Show Sept. 10-13

SPRINGFIELD — A show that takes you back to the bygone days of thresing gangs will be offered at the Ninth annual reunion of the Ozarks Steam Engine Association, Sept. 10-13, eight miles west of Springfield, on U.S. highway 60.

At least 20 steam engines rebuilt with tender care, are in top operating condition. They will supply the power for threshing, sawing, meal grinding shingle sawing and rock crushing at the Association's 17- acre tract.

The Ozarks Steam Engine Association is a non- profit organization, made up of mechanically inclined men who admit the craftsmanship and spirit of the steam engine era. Members donate their time, money and materials. They grow their own hickory cane corn for grinding meal during the show.

Their oldest steam engine was manufactured in 1892. Another made in 1894, a Geiser, has wooden spokes and a tongue connection so that it could be drawn by horses. Some of the other names are A. D. Baker, Minneapolis, Russell, Advance, Case and Port Huron. Also to be seen are several models of the Oil Pull, a competitor to the Steam Engine in the days before the internal combustion engine. The Antique Car Club has been invited to attend.

Gates open for the event at 8 a.m. daily.

Paul Eye, Appleton City, Mo., will be master of Ceremonies. Visitors are invited to bring old time items for display. Quarter-Century of Work In Catholic Bible Translation

WASHINGTON — The New American Bible, unveiled here yesterday, culminates 25 years of work by scholars and gives Catholics a new English translation to replace the Douay-Rheims version used by the church for two centuries.

It is the second new Bible this year. Scholars of the Protestant churches of the British Isles produced the New English Bible, which has been on the best- seller lists in this country 18 consecutive weeks. It is seen as a replacement for the King James version.

The New American Bible is the work of 51 scholars, most of them Catholic clergymen, but some Protestants worked on it also. They made use of recently discovered ancient manuscripts and the new translation is from the original languages in which the Bible was written: Hebrew, Greek and Aramaic, the language of Jesus.

"This is the only Bible in English to make complete critical use of all of the Dead sea scrolls thus far deciphered and the Masada Hebrew manuscript," the Rev. Stephen Hartdegen said. "The scrolls date as far back as the third century, B.C., and the Masada manuscript was written in the first century, B.C., and 'lost' for 2,000 years. Their use enabled translators to move closer to what the original authors wrote and made their words more meaningful."

Father Hartdegen is professor of scripture at Holy Name college, a Franciscan house of studies in the nation's capital. He was executive secretary and co-ordinator of the editorial board during the entire 25 years the work went on.

Modern English

The translation is in contemporary English, which gives meaing to obscure passages, removes archaic verb forms and is easier to read and understand. Yet as do all contemporary translations it loses some of the poetic quality of what may be termed biblical language.

The translators depended on an expanded knowledge of grammar and usage of the ancient languages and made comparative studies of old Bible manuscripts in Semitic languages and Near Eastern religious texts.

The book of Isaiah had among its sources a text 1,200 years older than any previously available. Three unpublished manuscripts of the book of Samuel from the scrolls in caves near Wadi Quaran were used and the book of Sirach is based in part on the Masada Hebrew manuscript.

Father Stephen emphasized the translator's duty was to be faithful and accurate to the original text, to be literal rather than to paraphrase, yet "to always have fidelity to the divinely inspired writings."

"We, too, have an appreciation of the grace and beauty of the King James version," he said. "The book of Job is a literary masterpiece in the original, but it would be false to make all other parts literary masterpieces, even if we could do it. We had in mind the needs of the American people of our day to express it in language anyone can understand. The publishers tell us its value is in its great readability."

Father Stephen discussed two recent "new Bibles- the Jerusalem Bible, which he found wanting because it is an English translation from the French, and the New English Bible which preserves the thees and thous and whose translators did not make use of all the ancient sources. Both are English Bibles, he said, stressing, "We wanted an American Bible." He pointed out the New American Bible is in conformity with others by using the English instead of the Old Testament spelling of proper names - Elijah for Elias and Isaiah for Isaias, as examples.

Catholics now use the Douay - Rheims version of the Bible. The New Testament was first published by the English college at Rheims in France in 1582, followed by the Old Testament at Douay in 1609. They were based on the Latin Vulgate which St. Jerome, one of the doctors of the church, completed in the year 405. A Catholic English prelate, Bishop Richard Challoner, revised the Douay- Rheims Bible a little more than a century after it was published.

While the English Catholics worked in France on their Bible, King James I ordered a new translation by Protestant clergymen in England. They produced one of the greatest works of literuature: the King James version of the Bible, published in 1611.

Request by Pope

The project for the New American Bible was undertaken by the Catholic bishops of the United States after Pope Pius XII in 1943 called for more attention to the scriptures. The bishops asked members of the Catholic Biblical Association of America to do the work.

The initiative for the project came earlier than that from the late Archbishop Edwin V. O'Hara of Kansas City who had begun work in 1936 with scholars toward an effort for a popular- language American Bible. He served as chairman of the bishops' committee on the project until his death in 1957.

The average Catholic layman is not much of a student of the Bible. He spens his time on catechism, church doctrine, the lives of the saints, courses on morality, ethics, Christian marriage and Catholic church history. Bible history is usually studied in elementary school.

Until recently the Catholic would hear at mass an epistle of St. Paul and the Gospel, one of the incidents in the life of Christ, read both in Latin and English. The new liturgy includes those in English, but adds a reading from the Old Testament and a recitation of psalms. So there is more enlightenment about the Bible. Some of the translations from this new Bible already are in use at mass and other services.

The new Bible is scheduled to be published September 30. Among the 12 publishers is Catholic Bible publishers of Wichita.

Among the protect leaders: Msgr. Myles M. Bourke of Fordham university, chairman of the New Testament editorial board; the Rev. Louis Hartman, chairman of the Old Testament, and Msgr. Patrick Skehan, vice-chairman of the editorial board, both of the Catholic University of America, and Bishop Charles Greco of Alexandria, La., chairman of the bishops' committee which sponsored the project.

Father Hartman died Saturday of a heart attack.

PSC Chief Says Bill Threat to Safety Program

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The chairman of Public Service Commission said Sunday a bill pending in Congress would seriously weaken Missouri's railroad safety program.

Chairman William R. Clark said the Senate passed a railroad safety bill that retained for the states their right of prosecution but the House version, now pending, would give all control to the federal government.

"This change would benefit the railroads, not the public," Clark said in a statement. "In Missouri we have been able to respond quickly to violations and ensure that corrections are made where necessary.

"We're making progress. The losses due to derailments in Missouri decreased $1 million during 1969. The number of fatalities and injuries resulting from railroad grade-crossing accidents also declined in 1969.

"This safety program would be seriously weakened if the bill is not changed."

Safeguard Test Successful

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon reported today the first successful test of its Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM) system in which a Spartan missile intercepted an incoming missile above the earth's atmosphere.

Pentagon officials said the Spartan, launched Aug. 28 from the mid-Pacific Safeguard test facility on Kwajalein atoll, soared into space to intercept an intercontinental ballistic missile nose cone launched 4,200 miles away from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

Neither the Spartan nor the target nose cone carried explosive warheads, officials said.

They explained scientists were able to determine through instruments that the Spartan's final stage - which when deployed as part of the Safeguard ABM system would carry a nuclear warhead-flew close enough to the incoming nose cone "to have caused its destruction,"

PSALM 19: 2-7
The Douay Version

The heavens shew forth the glory of God, and the firmament declareth the work of his hands....
Day to day uttereth speech,
and night to night sheweth knowledge.
There are no speeches no languages,
where their voices are not heard.
Their sound hath gone forth into all the earth:
and their words unto the ends of the world.

He hath set his tabernacle in the sun:
and he, as a bridegroom coming out of his bride chamber,
Hath rejoiced as a giant to run the way:
His going out is from the end of heaven,
And his circuit even to the end thereof:
and there is no one that can hide himself from his heat.

The New American Bible

The heavens declared the glory of God, and the firmament proclaims his handiwork.

Day pours out the word to day;
and night imparts knowledge;

Not a word nor a discourse whose voice is not heard;

Through all the earth their voice resounds,
and to the ends of the world, their message.
He has pitched a tent there for the sun, which comes forth like the groom from his bridal chamber and, like a giant, joyfully runs is course.

At one end of the heavens it comes forth, and its course is to their other end;
nothing escaped its heat.

MATTHEW 6: 19-21
The Douay Version

Lay not up to yourselves treasures on earth: where the rust, and moth consume, and where theieves break through steal.

But lay up to yourselves treasures in heaven: where neither the rust nor moth consume, and where thieves do not break through, nor steal.

For where thy treasure is, there is thy heart also.

The New Americal Bible

Do not lay up for yourselves an earthly treasure, Moths and rust corrode; thieves break in and steal. Make it your practice instead to store up heavenly treasure, which neither moths nor rust corrode nor thieves break in and steal. Remember, where your treasure is, there your heart is also.

POLLY'S POINTERS

She Finds Good Use For Bits of Bias Tape

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—When I am making slacks or shorts that have elastic at the waist I sew a small piece of bias tape or seam binding in the back seam to distinguish the back from the front. I keep a special roll of this tape on the side of my machine so it is always close at hand.—MRS. J. A.

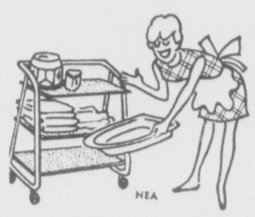
DEAR GIRLS—This would be a good use for those very short ends of tape that we all have left over from various sewing projects.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I like to keep hand soap beside my kitchen sink but it looked so messy until I started to keep it in a covered butter dish. This looks much better. It is easier to clean the dish than the soap.—MRS. J. S. B.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I accidentally smeared some pink lipstick on my new white bedspread. Is there some way I can get this off?—COLEEN

DEAR POLLY—I am an expectant mother with few funds available and would like to pass on a few Pointers I think both attractive and useful. A serving cart such as many of us have in our kitchens makes an excellent dressing table and for storing baby's bath needs. Clothes and towels can be stored on the second shelf and the bottom shelf will hold the baby's tub when it is not in use.



A set of plastic revolving canisters are ideal for roomy storage of all baby's toiletries, diaper pins, etc. Animals cut from adhesive-backed paper can cover the markings of "Sugar," "Flour," etc. These canisters store nicely on the top shelf and add a bright touch.

A handsome set of shelves can be made from fruit cartons stacked on top of each other and antiqued a pretty color. They hold sheets and blankets now and books, toys and records later.

Baby's curtains need be no added expense if the expectant mother uses old solid-color curtains on which she appliques animal cut-outs and then adds gay ruffles for a new look.—MRS. C. P.

Some States Weak On Bank Supervision

OSAGE BEACH, Mo. (AP)— Some state banking commissions are not equipped to regulate satisfactorily the banks under their jurisdiction, C.W. Culley, commissioner of the Missouri Division of Finance said Tuesday.

He did not name the states represented, but told the closing session of a district conference of the National Association of Supervisors of State Banks of his conclusions.

Culley cited a survey of 12 state bank departments which the national group conducted and said several of the commissioners who took part in the survey said they were not prepared to properly oversee the activities of banks in their regions.

"I think it is admirable that this is admitted," Culley said. He is chairman of the association's supervisory procedures committee.

The states covered in the first survey represent all sections of the country he said and a second survey is being conducted covering another 12 states.

The Missouri commissioner said the purpose of the surveys is to help states deemed incapable of supervising their commercial banks to correct inadequacies.

At a morning session, a panel of four state banking supervisors admitted concern over the use of what is called "brokered deposits" to obtain funds.

The panel generally agreed in warning bankers to shy away from this type of activity and Frank Wille, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., said that his agency also is concerned about the question of brokered loans.

Members of the panel were Roland W. Blaha, Illinois commissioner of banks and trust companies; Robert P. Briggs, commissioner of Michigan Financial Institutions Bureau; Collin W. Fritz, Iowa superintendent of banking; and William D. Allen, regional FDIC director from Columbus, Ohio.

The panel described "brokered deposits" as operations in which individuals or companies in various parts of the country advertise offering higher rates than federal regulations allow banks to pay on insured deposits. These funds are deposited in FDIC insured banks, usually with the agreement that the bank will lend these funds to an individual or company in some other part of the country. The broker obtains a commission from the borrower, usually amounting to 5 per cent, and passes a part of this commission on to the depositors of the funds. In the meantime the funds are earning the maximum rate permissible while on deposit in the federally insured institutions.

The reason for the concern, the panel agreed, is that often loans made by the banks are extended to borrowers who might not be creditworthy. The speakers said this sitution has resulted in several bank failures this year.

Fall From Water Fatal

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP)— Claude Roper, 29, of Moberly fell to his death Friday night from the municipal water tower on the south side of the city.

Sheriff Orville Price said the man climbed the tower but just why he had was not known.

Price said the man's mother, who lived nearby, told of hearing a call for help shortly before he fell and children in the vicinity said they had also heard someone calling.

PAT LEA, right, chairman of the Bootheel regional, Planning Commission, presents Parma's sketch plan to Mayor Randall Ramsey of Parma. Ronald Yersak, planner in charge, looks on.

Parma Sketch Plan Given to Major

MALDEN — Pat Lea, chairman of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission presented Parma's sketch plan to Mayor Randall Ramsey of Parma at the regular monthly meeting of the Commission.

Lea announced that this was the type of service that the commission could provide to its member municipalities and stated that this is why he and Mayor Ramsey, along with other interested people, aided in the formation of the commission.

The plan was the first to be completed this year, Ronald Yersak, Planner- in- Charge, announced. Yersak also indicated that the remaining two plans - Portageville and Wyatt Wilson City, should be returned from the printers in September.

Meany Gives Views on Women's Liberation, Rebellious Youth

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany says the politically powerful labor federation opposes the women's liberation movement for absolute equality because millions of women union members don't want to give up the job protections they have won in federal and state laws.

"There are laws in some states that women cannot work in coal mines," Meany said, adding that most women don't want to win the dubious right to mine coal or other heavy, dangerous work.

He said the AFL-CIO, one of the strongest lobbying blocs in Congress, won't help enact the amendment to give women absolute equality which was passed by the House and is pending in the Senate.

Meany, in a pre-Labor Day interview, also said Negroes are making progress in getting better-paid union jobs "but the process is very, very slow."

And the 76-year-old labor chieftain, father of three grown daughters, gave short shrift to today's generation of rebellious youth.

"If the younger generation are the hundred thousand kids that lay around a field in Woodstock, N.Y., I am not going to trust the destiny of the country to that group," Meany said.

"By what stretch of the imagination can you say that a 20-year-old kid knows what is wrong with the world and what should be done about it to a greater extent than a person who has had years of experience?" he asked.

Meany said there is a limited role for youth in the nation's labor movement, but suggested they must win their spurs through experience before exercising any major influence on union members.

Here are questions and answers from the interview:

Q: Are you going to help the ladies get their equal rights amendment across?

Meany: No.

Q: Why?

Meany: Well, there are certain protections in the law for women that we have been fighting to put into the law for many, many years. I passed a number of them 30-odd years ago in the New York State legislature. And all of this legislation was prepared by the ladies.

Now, of course, we get these militant feminists and they don't want any protection. They are equal and so on and so forth.

We represent millions of women who are in our unions and if they were willing to lose these protections, it would be all right with the AFL-CIO.

But we are going to take our policy from the women who are represented in our unions and they are opposed to this socalled equal rights amendment, unless there would be some safeguard in there to preserve this protective legislation.

Q: What about the situation in the labor movement with black workers, with Negroes and other minorities, are they getting more jobs, are they finding it easier to get into unions?

Meany: They're getting more jobs, but the process is very, very slow and we have tried to speed it up. We've tried to get more blacks in.

Take the construction industry. Now what do we want? What should the blacks want?

Well, I would say that they would want black young people in these industries who acquire the skills and become part of the work force of these industries. In other words, qualified and skilled and able to command whatever wages are paid these people. Now, this, this should be their aim.

And the only way that I know to do this, is through training with the young people, apprenticeship training.

And a lot of people have theories. They say well you have so many members, you have so few blacks. Ipso facto, you are discriminating.

Well, if that is true and we say alright, we're discriminating, or were discriminating, now we don't want to discriminate anymore, well what do we do from there?

We've had a tremendous change in the position of the trade unions, not only are our unions saying in effect—and these are the skilled unions—not only are we saying we will take in blacks, we are saying also that we will try to help recruit them.

And the recruitment is the problem.

I was reading the story just this morning, where the representative of the union with the cooperation of the black civil rights organization, they succeeded in two predominantly black high schools, they succeeded, I think, out of an enrollment of 4,000 youngsters, in getting five to agree to take up the apprenticeship trade.

Now, why they're not more successful, I'm not quite sure. Because there is no question that the wages and the possibility of making a living, the wages are good....

The fellow who works year round, he is well above $10,000 a year. And even the laborers are way up there. So I don't see why we are not able to attract more of these young Negro boys.

Q: Could you comment on a philosophical question regarding youth protests today; I am not thinking about the extremist type or the destructive type, but a lot of kids seem to think that the system doesn't work so well, it doesn't respond so well any more. The labor movement is sort of the original rebels in this country. Does the labor movement have anything to say to today's kids in general?

Meany: Well, we don't have much contact with them. I don't hold with the idea that this generation of kids is exceptional except in the sense that they have had greater educational opportunities.

And the mere fact that they have had greater educational opportunities doesn't indicate to me that they have got the answers that the older generation hasn't got. I can't see that at all.

To these people who constantly say you have got to listen to these young people, they have got something to say, I just don't buy that at all. They smoke more pot than we do and if the younger generation are the hundred thousand kids that lay around a field up in Woodstock, New York, I am not going to trust the destiny of the country to that group.

Q: Do you think there is any way the labor movement could, perhaps, rope some of these kids into a constructive program—organizing farm workers or whatever? Has that been tried?

Meany: No, it hasn't been tried. I don't know what justification there would be for trying it, really. The education of the kids is supposed to be the job of the schools and we have promoted the schools ever since the labor movement started in this country. I don't think it is our job to educate them. I think it is the school's job to educate them.

Q: Is there greater polarization between, say, labor union people and the youth intellectuals?

Meany: I don't see any polarization at all. I think there is a certain amount of emphasis. I think kids are more talkative in the sense they will talk up to their parents than they were when I was a kid and I think this comes from the fact that kids have a wider knowledge of what is going on. But I don't think that this means the kids have any better judgment.

Crismon Posts Bond Of $10,000

ST. LOUIS (AP)— James B. Crismon, former president of the First State Bank of Bonne Terre, Mo., was free on $10,000 bond today after an appearance before a U.S. commissioner on a charge of embezzlement.

A preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 18.

The federal charge was based on information alleging Crismon misapplied about $70,000 in bank funds.

The FBI arrested Crismon Wednesday after he surrendered in Farmington, Mo., on a magistrate court warrant for obtaining money under false pretenses in connection with a loan.

He was released at Farmington on another $10,000 bond after he asked for a preliminary hearing on the magistrate charge. A hearing on that is set for Sept. 9.

Next Wednesday a St. Francois County grand jury is scheduled to begin an investigation of loan practices at the bank.

State finance officials closed the bank Monday following a six-week investigation of questionable loans.

Hat Factory Asks for More Space

DEXTER — Plans under which the International Hat Company would lease the large building owned by the city at the Dexter Municipal Airport and formerly occupied by a plumbing and heating firm were expected to be formulated at a special meeting of the Dexter City Council Monday night of this week, it was learned early Monday.

Mayor Willis Conner said that he thought plans for the lease "have been worked out" so that they can be submitted to the City Council for approval.

The International Hat Company wants to lease the building for storage space and would rent the building from the city, the Mayor said. Mayor Conner, and members of the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee headed by Jack Miller, have been working on the plan with Joe Palazzolo, Superintendent of the International Hat Company in Dexter. Expansion of International Hat Company here, and an increase in its productivity, were given as reasons for the need for additional space.

Tokyo Protests Korean Cuts

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The Japanese government has secretly protested strongly to the United States about President Nixon's proposed withdrawal of some 20,000 American troops from South Korea, this reporter has learned.

The Japanese say this withdrawal will be harmful to East Asian stability. It will endanger the independence of South Korea. They imply it will encourage North Korea's Kim Il Sung, Communist China's Mao Tse-tung and Ho Chi Minh's successors in Hanoi. It will have effects in Nationalist China and Southeast Asia. The action, therefore, would have unhappy results for Japan.

The Japanese protest is based, of course, on psychological considerations. Military specialists believe South Korea's ground troops are a match for the North Koreans. That is, they can more than hold their own so long as the United States provides arms, logistical and technical support—and air and sea forces if and when North Korea invades the South.

The U.S. government has assured Seoul it will provide this backup—and also funds to upgrade Korea's forces in arms and material.

What the Japanese foresee is that the withdrawal of U.S. troops will be taken as a symbol of a retreat of American will. They think this "retreat" will create a vacuum, which will lead to the instabilities mentioned above.

As is well-known, Japan is not alone in this worry. The South Koreans have protested with the greatest vigor. The Thai foreign minister, in private and in public for the past two years, has told his government that if the United States shows signs of backing off in the Far East, then his government, however painfully, must make what deals it can with Peking and Hanoi.

The heads of state of Malaysia, Laos and Singapore, in one way or another, have made it clear to their neighbors and to Washington that they believe a continued strong American presence in Asia is essential to their national independence. Prince Sihanouk of Cambodia made similar statements before his overthrow.

Now all this is not to pass judgment on the wisdom of a partial troop withdrawal from South Korea or Europe. Nor is it meant to imply that Nixon should not continue his troop pullouts in South Vietnam.

What this reporter does suggest most strongly is that the United States recognize the great political and psychological effects worldwide of American troop shifts. Major U.S. military withdrawals must be preceded by physical actions which will not only inform but convince our allies and their enemies what American intentions are.

GIs are a very strong and effective expression of American will and intent. If they are removed (or partly removed), an equally convincing physical expression of American intent must be substituted. It need not always be wholly military.

If there's one thing we must make you aware of it's this: When discovered early, most cancers are curable. 1,500,000 Americans who are cured of cancer are proof. Kenaf Rated Promising as Pulp Source

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government sees in Kenaf a promising and fast-growing raw material source for pulp, used by itself or blended with wood to make paper.

Known around the world under various names for making twine, ropes and rugs, Kenaf first was field tested as a pulp crop in this country 13 years ago. Over the years improvements developed by government and private scientists have improved growth and yields to the point where it "appears to be competitive for acreage with corn and soybeans, and in some areas with cotton."

The Agriculture Department research report which made this claim stressed the need for further research to produce cross bred or hybrid types with greater resistance to pests such as root nematodes.

By 1965 Kenaf was being grown successfully without supplemental irrigation in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North and South Carolina and eastern Texas.

High yields also have been obtained as far north as Indiana, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska and prospects are good for excellent yields in warm, dry areas with irrigation.

No known diseases or insect pests seriously injure the plant, although it can be hurt by nematodes, but chemical weed controls would be desirable in most potential production areas except in Florida, where wide, bedded rows in flat woods soils prosper even without cultivation.

Under favorable conditions, yields of six tons per acre should be obtainable in southeastern states. Northern Florida has produced higher yields and production of up to 20 tons per acre have been recorded on experimental, small plots.

Tests show that Kenaf contains less lignin and cellulose than either softwoods or hardwoods but about twice as much of other desirable chemical compounds found in softwoods.

Tests indicate good possibilities for blending Kenaf with wood pulps in various types of paper but suggest the need for further research to determine use of the plant pulp alone for specific types of papers.

Poelker Joins Panel Probing Babler Sales

ST. LOUIS (AP)—City Comptroller John H. Poelker was named Sunday to a commission investigating sale and purchase of land willed the state by the late Jacob Babler, a St. Louis lawyer.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes made the appointment following resignation from the recently-appointed commission by Frederic M. Peirce, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the General American Life Insurance Co.

Peirce said he feared possible conflict of interest in that he serves also as a director of McDonnell Douglas Corp., which purchased a tract of land in question.

Harold E. Thayer, president and chairman of the board of the Mallinckrodt Chemical Co., and Harry F. Harrington, a director of Boatmen's National Bank are other commission members.

A St. Louis Globe Democrat reporter, John V. Colt, wrote last week that William W. Dolan of St. Louis was given exclusive contract by the State Park Board to buy and sell about 1,000 acres of Babler land adjoining Edmund Babler State Park in west St. Louis County.

The commissions Dolan netted, Colt said, amounted to about $80,000. Dolan is also an appointive member of the Missouri Real Estate Commission.

The late Babler willed the state 3,000 acres of land, including 800-acre Babler Park. He died in 1945.

A suit by a niece of Babler's has been filed in St. Louis County Circuit Court at Clayton challenging sale of the land by the state.

Unemployment Dips in July

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The rate of unemployment in Missouri dropped to 4.5 per cent in July after three months of recording rates above 5 per cent. In June the unemployment rate was 5.6 per cent, the State Division of Employment Security reported today.

There were 2,011,100 persons on non-farm jobs in July, up 8,100 from June but down 25,600 from July 1969.

The average hourly wage in July was $3.44, up 2 cents and the average week was 40.2 hours down .4 hour.

Demos Push For Public Job Plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democrats are mounting a challenge to the Nixon administration's on-the-job training bill which they hope will spotlight the issues of unemployment and the economy shortly before the Nov. 3 congressional elections.

The challenge was laid down by the Democratic majority on the Labor and Public Welfare Committee which added a multibillion dollar public service employment program to the bill.

The administration strongly opposes such a program on fiscal and other grounds.

Senate Democratic leaders have scheduled the legislation for floor action around mid-September. Republican conservatives have pledged a fight to eliminate or cut back on the public service job features.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., chief sponsor of the bill, insists these features are fully as important as the government's manpower training programs which would be extended three years by the measure.

The trouble with the training programs, he says, is that too often the graduate has been unable to find a job because none was available.

The bill as written in the Labor Committee not only would assure the trainees jobs but would give states and cities manpower needed to cut into a huge backlog of public service needs.

Nelson estimated the bill would provide 150,000 to 200,000 public service jobs in the first year.

They would be in such fields as education, health, recreation, sanitation, police and fire services, and control of drug abuses.

Democrats on the Finance Committee are raising the same issue on a separate bill—President Nixon's welfare reform plan.

That proposal would provide job training for thousands of welfare recipients. But Sens. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., complained there is no assurance the trainees will get employment. They are sponsoring an amendment to add a public service job feature to this legislation.

Administration officials oppose these efforts chiefly because of the heavy costs which would contribute to the already threatened budget deficits.

But Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson also told Finance he was convinced "such large scale public job creation is not needed."

"In our dynamic and growing economy, we believe we can train most people for real jobs that exist in the private sector," he said.

Interstate to Pay Regular Dividend Sept. 30

KANSAS CITY — The board of directors of Interstate Brands Corporation has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 22.5 cents per share on common stock payable Sept. 30, to stockholders of record Sept. 11.

The board also declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.20 per share on preferred stock payable Sept. 30, to stockholders of record Sept. 11.

One of the nation's largest bakery- food firms, Interstate Brands (formerly Interstate Bakeries) produces cake and bread products from 37 plants.

Farmers Might Do Well To Check Tax Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers and livestockmen would do well to consult the new federal income tax regulations before completing some transactions between now and December.

For among the numerous changes advertised as reform in the Internal Revenue Code are several directly affecting Americans who try to earn a living from the land.

Two provisions of the 1969 act relate specifically to the reporting of income from sales of livestock purchased for draft, breeding, sporting or dairy purposes.

Formerly all such income could be treated as capital gains which are taxable at lower rates. Livestock used in the farm business was exempted from depreciation recapture. This worked out to permit depreciation claimed in the past to be deducted from ordinary income that is taxed at the usual, higher rates.

Under the new law, gain from the sale of livestock will be treated as ordinary income, rather than capital gain, up to the full amount of previous depreciation deductions. This applies to depreciation claimed after 1969.

Thus livestock is put on the same tax base as other property used in business, depreciation on which normally is recaptured at time of sale.

Another new provision doubles—to two years—the retention period for horses and cattle acquired after this coming Dec. 31 before they can be sold and qualify for capital gains.

One objective of the longer holding period for cattle and horses is to assure they are in fact being held for the purposes specified, rather than for sale in the ordinary course of business. The longer retention also is intended to discourage short-term investments in ranching by people whose main business motive is to save taxes on their nonfarm income.

A third revision affects taxation of indemnities paid to farmers for crop damage or loss.

The old requirement had the effect, in some cases, of forcing a farmer who customarily marketed his crop in the year after harvest to pay taxes on two crops in one year. The new law eliminates this hardship by allowing farmers to defer reporting indemnities until the year following losses.

Sept. 5 Is Circus Day

Sept. 5 is circus day. The arrival of a three-ring European style circus takes place as the Sells & Gray Circus Arrives at Daybreak for performances at 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. under the sponsorship of the Volunteer Fire Department.

The circus will arrive on three convoys and traditional spectacle of watching a tented circus city arise on circus morning is expected to start approximately at 8 a.m. at the circus grounds.

Most of the youngsters will be probably seeing their first traditional circus under the big top with all of its nostalgic excitement for the first time. Many of the oldsters on hand will be reliving some golden memories.

The usual swift unloading of animals and equipment will be handled by circus workmen aided by the circus performing elephants, and out of apparent chaos will come precision as the tented city is erected.

There are more than 100 circus stars and performers in the 1970 edition of the show, with several making their first appearance in America this year, having been brought from European and Asian countries by Sells & Gray for this year's program. Included will be high aerial thrillers, acrobatic and tumbling champions, tightwire wizards, spectacular trapeze dare-devils and juggling artists.

PRETTY TRAPEZE ARTISTS will perform Sept. 5 at the Sells and Gray circus.

Hiker Found After Being Lost 5 Days

SEATTLE —(AP)—Bryan Berger, 23, Lawrence, Kan., walked out of the rugged Glacier Peak area of northwestern Washington Saturday after being missing since last Monday.

He said he became lost in heavy fog while hiking along Lost Creek Ridge at the end of a 10-man column in the final week of a 28-day survival training course.

"I ended up in some canyon," he said. "By the time it cleared up, I knew I was where I shouldn't be but didn't know where I should be."

Berger, a graduate in zoology and botany from the University of Kansas, said he had two packages each of soup, gelatine and a cold drink mix, a package of boullion cubes and an ear of fresh corn. He said he also ate some huckleberries he picked along the way.

Berger walked down Fern Creek Canyon to the White Chuck Road 19 miles from Darrington and was picked up by a Forest Service employe in a truck. He was resting at the Seattle home of friends Sunday.

Ten rescue teams and five Snohomish County deputies took part in the search for the missing member of the Outward Bound training school.

Antique Show At Festival

FULTON, Ky. — A two-day antique show and sale, containing many unusual items of books, oriental rugs, bottles, pictures, furniture, coins and guns will be of focal interest when the Eighth Annual International Banana Festival is staged at the twin cities of Fulton, Ky. and South Fulton, Tenn. Sept 8 - 12.

The show and sale will be held at the Exhibition Building at Kitty League Park on September 10 and 11 from nine a.m. to nine p.m.

The event has been limited to the first 20 exhibitors requesting space for exhibitors. This is the third year that the antique show and sale has been staged, with each year bringing in more hitherto, almost, unavailable items.

Ample space has been provided for the display of antique itmes. Mrs. Enoch Campbell, chairman of the show and sale reported today that many collector's items in primitives, linens and a wide selection of authentic, antique items will be available for sale.

Except for an entrance fee to the exhibition area, the antique show show and sale is free to the public.

Bank Heists Up Sharply Since 1960

WASHINGTON (AP) — There was "Dashing Dan," the softspoken New Yorker who dressed neatly and used a note. Then there were the four men in Cincinnati who left four women dead in their wake.

Between them, and thousands of others who followed their line of work in the past decade, they have robbed more banks and stolen more money than John Dillinger could have aspired to in his heyday.

Since 1960, bank robberies have increased nearly threefold, the FBI says. Despite a drop of slightly more than one per cent in 1969, says FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, bank robberies are becoming more than ever "a major problem facing law enforcement."

"Banking institutions are sustaining mounting monetary losses, of course, but the more alarming problem involves the numerous acts of violence inflicted upon the bank employes, bank customers and law enforcement officers during the commission of these crimes," Hoover told a congressional committee recently.

In one of the most brutal cases recorded by the FBI in recent years, three armed robbers forced one woman employe and three women customers into the vault of a savings and loan office in Cincinnati, Ohio, last year, shot them to death and fled with $275.

"Dashing Dan," so named for his fast footwork, is accused of robbing 19 New York banks in a three-month period earlier this year, getting away with $34,000 without so much as pulling a gun.

Dan would hand the teller a note, warning that he had a gun and demanding large denomination bills. If the teller hesitated, he would say "excuse me" and walk away. If the teller complied, he said "thank you" and left with the loot.

Bank robberies now number about 2,000 per year and losses run in the millions of dollars, according to FBI statistics. The most likely victims are branch banks or savings and loan offices in cities of 25,000 population or more, although rural banks are still being knocked off regularly the FBI says.

Despite the dip in 1969 bank robbery has increased more the past 10 years than any other type of robbery recorded by the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports.

Bank robbery has risen by 236 per cent since 1960, compared with a jump of 186 per cent in street robberies such as mugging and armed holdup. All violent crimes, including robbery, rose 130 per cent during the decade.

Convictions, at least those for robbing financial institutions protected by federal bank robbery laws, fall far short of the total number of offenses.

Hearnes Proclaims Week of Prayer For U.S. POWs

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)— Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Friday proclaimed next week a "week of prayer and remembrance" for U.S. prisoners of war and those missing in action in Southeast Asia.

He urged "all citizens of Missouri to unite in their prayers and actions to seek human decency for our fellow Americans."

Ban on DDT Extended to More Uses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department Friday canceled registration uses of DDT for many classes of livestock, lumber, buildings, forest trees and more than 50 fruit and vegetable crops.

The action was based on recommendations by a committee of experts after review by the Departments of Interior, Health, Educationand Welfare, and Agriculture.

The new round of cancelations – which means withdrawal of government approval of use for specific purposes-- followed the withdrawal last November of federally approved uses of DDT for control of pests infecting house and garden plantings, shade trees, and tobacco crops.

In March, registered use of DDT and related persistent pesticides was canceled around water environments, including marshes and wetlands, except where deemed essential for the control of disease by public health authorities.

Friday's order does not pertain to the use of DDT for control of insects on cotton and citrus crops.

Dr. Ned Bayley, the department's director of science and education, said at a news conference that cotton accounts for about 70 per cent of remaining agricultural DDT use and that it is a "particularly difficult and complex problem" because some possible substitutes, such as those containing organic phosphorous compounds, are more acutely toxic to humans and animals than is DDT.

Bayley said a decision on approved use of DDT for cotton and citrus- mainly in the Southwest- is under consideration.

India at Mercy of Moscow

NEW DELHI — Robert McNamara, former U.S. secretary of Defense, once said that defense aid to developing countries was an extension of the lending country foreign policy. This has become true, at least in the case of the Soviet Union giving arms aid to India. The Indian government now seems to be in a fix.

In the last two years prominent members of the opposition and the press have been publicly criticizing the government for allegedly depending too much on Soviet supplies. Moscow, they say, can at will ground our air force and stop the operation of other defense wings in the event of a war.

The Soviet Union is already starving our defense forces of spares for the equipment it has supplied. It has thus exposed the country to external aggression. The recent major cabinet reshuffle by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi leads on to believe that she also cannot rely too much on the bonafides of this superpower. Referring to the attitude of Big Powers she once bitterly said that they wanted us to grow only to an extent. She, of course, did not name any country.

The itmes most affected by the Russian move are MIGs and M-I helicopters in the Indian air force and heavy artillery guns and tanks in the army. A possibility, now seriously troubling our defense experts, is that if a war breaks out, we can fight only for 10 days with Soviet equipment and on the 11th day of the starting of the fight we shall have to ask Moscow for spares.

Topic at Meeting

The discussions at the parliamentary consultative committee of the Defense ministry, which met July 21 with the new Defense minister, Jagjivan Ram, in the chair, focused on this predicament.

The issue was raised by Madhu Limaye, Nath Pai, Mrs. Sharda Mukherjee and others who attended the meeting. They took the committee by surprise with specific items of reportedly inside information. Limaye said that M-I helicopters, the lifeline of Himalayan defense, had definitely been grounded for lack of spares and that our MIGs were facing a similar fate. The Russians, he said, were holding back some "vital spares" which had grounded these aircraft.

About MIGs in particular, Limaye's information is most disquieting, since the Indian air force is heavily dependent on Soviet spares both for offensive and defensive actions. Limaye said that since the MIG-21 was no longer in production in Russia and, in fact, was obsolete in that country, the Russians were not making any more spares. Nor were these spares being made in India in the MIG complex where the program for their manufacture was lagging behind schedule, he said. The Russians supply 99 out of 100 parts, but hold back a single component without which the plane cannot be got into the air.

As for the army, Limaye revealed that the Russians were not giving spare barrels for the 100-mm. guns and 130 mm. guns. These are excellent guns, Limaye told the committee, but they become useless when they have fired 1,200 effective full charges, after which the guns need new barrels. The Soviet Union has similarly rendered our PT-75 tanks ineffective, through the defense secretary, Sarin, who was aiding the defense minister, said that the tanks were very good for action.

It is well known that India has repeatedly asked the Soviet Union for these vital spares. India's request has been put off every time on one excuse or the other. Sometimes the Russians say that they are no longer making these parts, but that they will soon make some specially for India. At other times they say that there is no hurry about them and that they will airlift them in an emergency, that is, after China has taken quite a few hundred miles more of our territory in a lightning attack.

Limaye's disclosure put the new defense minister in an embarrassing position. Ram has evidently not applied his mind to such complex problems as keeping his MIGs, guns and tanks in battle readiness. But Sarin held that the position was not very unsatisfactory; it kept changing from month to month.

Disputed Map

Meanwhile, reports have been published in the press that the third edition of the Great Soviet Enclyclopedia brought out last May continues to print a political map of Asia, showing large chunks of Indian territory as Chinese. The recent edition of the Soviet "Georgraphical Atlas" also contains a similar map. The map in the encyclopedia faithfully follows Chinese claims to Indian territory and depicts the entire North-East Frontier agency and Aksai Chinas belonging to China.

In reply to many notes from the Indian side over the last few years, drawing Moscow's attention to the wrong delineation of Sino-Indian border in Soviet maps, the Soviet Union has repeatedly promised "to look into" the matter. But the map published as late as May this year — and in such authoritative publications — means that Moscow does not take Indian portests seriously.

Surendrapal Singh, deputy external affairs minister, in reply to a question about the map published in the Soviet "Geographical Atlas," told the Lok Sabha on July 29 that the government would "continue to pursue the matter at dipiomatic level as before" with the Soviet Union. On August 7 the entire opposition except Communists and D. M. K. walked out of the Lok Sabha in protest against the wrong map published in the encyclopedia.

Roos to Stump For Home-Rule Charter Plan

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — St. Louis County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roose will tour Missouri in a campaign to get a home- rule charter amendment for his county passed by voters in the Nov. 3 general election.

Home rule for St. Louis County, Missouri's largest, would allow residents to decide in an election what services should be provided on a county-wide basis.

Roos, assisted by James R. James, general chairman of the bi- partisan committee for home rule, will leave Wednesday night for visits to Kansas City, St. Joseph, Joplin, Springfield, Columbia, Jefferson City and Cape Girardeau.

Whittier Plans to Donate 120 Acres For Nixon Library

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — The city of Whittier plans to donate 120 acres of land for construction of a proposed Richard M. Nixon presidential library, Vice Mayor Blake Sanborn says.

The city - owned property is adjacent to the Whittier College campus, where Nixon was graduated in 1934.

THINKING OF SKIING?

OLD BENNINGTON, Vt. (AP) — Gene and Barbara Tinker already are thinking about the skiing season. One of their favorite spots starting in November will be Woodstock, Vt.

The Tinkers "Learn to Ski," (Walker and Co., $4.95), now in its second printing, is an attractive book and easy to understand for the beginner. They have dedicated the 117-page book, featuring fine photographs, to their three children, David, Wendy and Gena.

Radiation Therapy For Animals, Too

COLUMBIA — "Radiation therapy" usually brings to mind people undergoing cancer therapy or treatment for strange thyroid growths, but rarely does one think of it in terms of animals. Yet radiation therapy is just as beneficial for man's best friend as it is for man.

Providing such treatment for companion and domestic animals is a special section at the School of veterinary Medicine, University of Missouri -Columbia. It is under the direction of Dr. E. A. Corley, president of the American College of Veterinary Radiology and professor of veterinary medicine and surgery and a specialist in radiology.

The School's radiology section has been active for many years, but has made many advances in know how, equipment and personnel in the past four. Radiographic diagnosis is still the most important function of the section, but nuclear medicine and radiation therapy have broadened its activities.

For example, nuclear medicine may use an isotope scanner for diagnostic work. Radioactive isotopes of iodine, which will lodge in the thyroid, are given to a dog. After they are injected the scanning machine traces over the animal and makes a print of the isotopes' location.

Since the isotopes will only settle in a functioning part of the organ, an abnormality such as a tumor will be outlined on the print. An expanding cancer, starting in the thyroid, might pick up the isotopes and show up on the print. Consequently the veterinarian will have an idea of the size of the organ and if all parts are properly working.

Some nuclear medicine procedures do not require actual injection of radioactive isotopes by the animal, but rather are laboratory tests run on blood samples.

According to Dr. Corwin, radiation therapy is an effective way to treat certain tumors especially of the skin or those close to the surface in animals that may be inoperable. "Radiation may inhibit the tumor growth or directly destroy tumor cells curing the problem.

"As with all tumors," he continued, "there is the possibility of metastasis or 'spread' so that care must be taken to include all the cancer site in treatment. According to results of radiation therapy at Colorado State University, animals that do not show recurrances of the growth within two years after treatment will not redevelop that problem."

Radiation therapy makes use of many tools ranging from large X-ray machines in lead -lined rooms to small radioactive interstitial needles. These needles are about large sewing needle size and contain radioactive Cesium -137 which has a half life of thirty years. The little tubes can be surgically implanted in tumors and left until a dose great enough to handle the problem is administered.

They also can be applied like a bandage over a horse's damaged ligament or tendon to produce a counter inflammation strong enough to alleveiate the problem. this process works much the same as chemical or heat therapy but usually minimizes scars or damage to surrounding tissue.

According to Dr. Corwin, another form of radiation therapy, a beta ray, can be used for problems such as pannus on a Cocker Spaniel's eye. Pannus is a condition in which optical blood vessels begin to creep across the cornea of the eye. A simple, hand -held instrument containing Strontium -90 may be touched to the vessels and stop the growth.

Dosage is as important with animals as with humans, since the surrounding normal tissue is sensitive to radiation, care must be taken not to harm it, therefore a series of treatments extended over a longer time is necessary rather than several massive doses. Also cells divide over different time spans and cancer cells may be most suspectible to radiation during a certain period of reproduction.

Further, as the tumor shrinks during treatment, the deeper tumor cells which originally had a poorer blood supply may become more sensitive to the radiation. If treatment is given a number of times there may be a greater chance of killing all the cells in the tumor.

Some special cases the radiology section has handled involved a Beagle and a saddle horse. The Beagle, a referral case as are many treated at the School, had a huge growth behind his larynx. The major portion of it was surgically removed, but it had spread to surrounding tissue in which further surgery was impossible. Radiation treatment from both sides of the throat effectively cleared up the residue.

The horse had a skin cancer on his eyelid that was growing into the cornea of the eye, blocking vision and leaving a cloudy covering. X-ray treatment with the large therapy machine successfully shrank the growth and cleared up the cloudiness.

Assisting Dr. Corley and Corwin with clinical work are registered radiological technologists, Ed Shepp and Bev Jones. Shepp worked at the UMC Medical Center before joining the School of Veterinary Medicine staff. Mrs. Jones is also a qualified nuclear medicine technologist.

Dr. Corwin feels that radiation therapy as it now exists has only begun to touch the surface of possibilities in veterinary medicine. He foresees increasing use of combinations with surgery or chemotherapy or even other forms of radiation. Although cost to the client is comparable to surgery, the initial training and equipment investment is presently too costly for routine use at other than large institutions.

Both Dr. Corley and Dr. Corwin agree that the increased scope of the section could serve several purposes, including bringing radiation therapy into more common use. Since it is connected with the Veterinary Hospital -Clinic it is available to Missouri veterinarians and people with sick animals, at the same time, it trains aspiring veterinarians.

But particularly, these faculty members hope that the knowledge gained from treatment of spontaneous animal tumors with different radiation combinations, plus other procedures will help improve the cure rate in man and animal.

U.S., Soviets Renew Bid to Disarm Seas

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union pledged today to continue efforts for the demilitarization of the sea bed, beyond the envisaged ban of atomic weapons installations on the ocean floor.

The pledge was contained in he latest revision of their joint draft treaty outlawing mass destruction weapons in that environment, tabled at the 25-nation disarmament talks today.

Presented by U.S. delegate James F. Leonard and Russia's Alexei A. Roschin, the two conference cochairmen, it was the fourth version of the draft treaty that has failed thus far to obtain approval from the full conference.

The first draft was tabled early last October, followed by revised drafts with minor changes presented at the end of the same month, and on April 21.

Oct. 6 Deadline For Registration

BENTON — Phil Waldman, county clerk, said today that Oct. 6 is the deadline for registration for the Nov. 3 general election. He said there are about 14,000 registered votes in Scott County.

Waldman said residents of Sikeston could register at the city clerk's office at the city administration building and citizens of Benton at the county clerk's office at the courthouse.

Waldman said any citizen of Scott County can register anywhere in Scott county as long as they give their address and voting precinct. He said most towns have city halls where residents can register but cited Blodgett as an example of a town without a city hall. He said residents of Blodgett may register at Deason's store there.

Lost Capital Twice

The United States lost its capital city twice. Philadelphia, the capital during the Revolution, was occupied by Gen. Howe, 1777-17778; in the War of 1812, Washington was taken by the British.
